

'Tradition preserved' as Frosh 'invade halls'

Tradition was preserved as the halls were invaded by freshmen during Frosh Orientation. Two assemblies and tours of the school were provided to acquaint the frosh with the experience known as high school.

In addition to directional advice, the freshmen were informed of the "Do's and Dont's" of high school. They were also given some helpful hints which included "Don't sit on senior bench, and have the right change at noon."

Faculty members were presented during the first assembly, as were student body officers, Executive Council, and the student body president of David Douglas, who spoke on the three yet uncured diseases—"the common cold, acne, and 'Frosh-fearitis'." Commercials were interspersed throughout the assembly advocating the "worthwhileness" of student body cards.

After the first assembly, the freshmen were hustled out by Senior Guides, and were then given either a 20 minute tour, a 40 minute seminar, or 20 minutes to pay fees. All groups were staggered so as to have very little overlap between groups.

Both rallies presented the second assembly. Each varsity rally member introduced himself; the JV rally was also introduced. Gendrills were in attendance, but were not introduced formally. The Grant Fight Song and some new yells were taught to the frosh—the assembly ended with the Grant Anthem.
