Lazy

Clackamas Community College's standing as one of the forerunners in removing architectural barriers to the handicapped student is one we should all take great pride in.

For too long, the handicapped person with an active mind but limited physical capacity has been denied a place in our society. Termed "freaks," "misfits" or "stupid" simply because their bodies don't function properly, they have not been allowed to share their minds and other talents with the rest of the world.

The College is taking the first step in making it possible for these people to enter the mainstream, but in doing this are perhaps doing the rest of the students a disservice.

If the doors in the Community Center mall are any indication of what is to follow, students on this campus will forget how to open doors if automatic ones are installed in all the buildings. Students line up four and five deep just to go through the one automatic door. Handicapped students have even been seen waiting to use the door designed for them while other, non-handicapped students, take advantage of the facility.

The College planning department and Associated Student Government has decided to install lockers in every building with some of them designated for handicapped use only. This system will initially be run on the honor system. We are anxious to see if there are enough honorable students around to allow the system to work. After all, if people are too lazy to open a door, they are probably going to be too lazy to carry their books around in their two good arms.

Money back

To the Editor:

I would like to take this time (or energy) to voice my opinion about the monies in ASG and how they are spent, then stick my head in the ground and not get involved. I would like a refund of my share of the $34,405 Student Government has control of. If those few playing at capitalistic oligarchy (under the guise of Student Government) let go of my money, I promise to continue not to participate in any programs funded by the ASG.

If as I suspect this proves impossible, I would like my share spent on funding a special election consisting of a sole measure. This measure would read:

Associated Student Government? Yes  No

If this measure seems oversimplified, how about: I would like to be governed by: (choose one)

- |              |                      |
|--------------|----------------------|
| A. Anarchy   | E. Other             |
| B. Autocracy | F. None of the above |
| C. Feudalism | G. All of the above. |
| D. Oligarchy |                      |

If a special election is out of the question, I would like my money to be shared between Don Bixler and Hallie Brown for the purpose of funding their tuition into special classes, respectively; "Intro. to Logic" and "What Employers Look for."

Quite sincerely,
King Apathy

Editor's note: It is our policy to print only those letters that are signed and give the address of the writer. Names will be withheld on request. Because we felt that perhaps this policy had not been made clear we have made this one exception. However, please note that in the future, policy will be strictly adhered to.

The Print welcomes all letters to the editor in its new Feedback column. In fact, we encourage them. Consider this a place not only for feedback on the newspaper, but also to air views on school policy, instructors, classes, administration or any other topic pertaining to Clackamas Community College.

We ask only that letters be typewritten, double-spaced or carefully prepared in ink, and signed by the person submitting the letter. The editorial board requires that at the bottom of the letter the person or persons writing the letter attach his or her full name, address and phone number where that person can be reached for verification. Names will be withheld on request.
