ASG plans winter activities

The College's Associated Student Government has many activities planned for winter term that were chosen through feedback given by students in recent polls taken by ASG.

They have planned several coffeehouses for winter term due to the success of fall term's coffeehouses.

On Jan. 6, Red Mark a singer and instrumentalist, will perform in the Fireside Lounge from 8 to 11 p.m.

For those who missed Steve Cooper this term he will return Jan. 25.

Cooper plays a variety of instruments including the guitar, squeezebox, and harmonica. He sings many popular songs, but all of them are mellow. He also sings folk songs and ballads. Cooper is a performer who is enjoyed by young and old.

Less Williams will be at the College on Jan. 25. Williams is a dancer. He will perform in the CC mall from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

If you enjoy Appalachian folk music don't miss Guy Carawan. Carawan will sing in the mall Jan. 11, at 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Next term's Monday Flick titles have not been decided upon. The subjects will be horror flicks.

In February the Williams Toy Theatre, a group of puppeteers, will be putting on a show. The Theatre will be here Feb. 8 at 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

On Feb. 22 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Spira, a group of actors, will perform in the CC mall.

CCC gains talented student

The college has a very talented new artist - Rhonda Albeke. She paints in oils, sketches and sculptures.

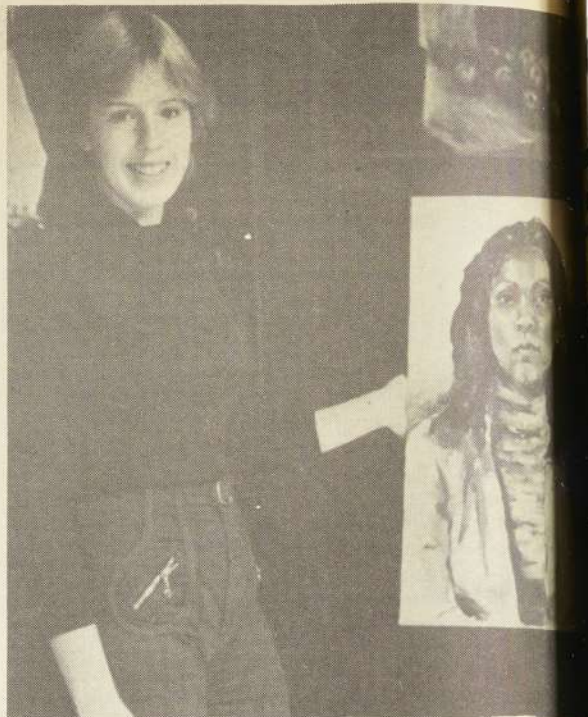

Albeke is studying for her art major here at the college. Portraits and landscapes are the subjects she likes to work with.

"I really don't know when I started," said Albeke, "I received my first oil painting kit when I was in the ninth grade."

A year later Albeke enrolled in a painting class at the Brush and Platte in Milwaukie, taught by Jack Barber an Oregon City high school art instructor "A lot of my ideas and feeling about art were influenced by Barber," Albeke said.

"I'm constantly starting paintings," Albeke said, "I paint until a certain portion is finished then start on something new."

Albeke has around fifty paintings that she has started. "The hardest thing for an artist to do is knowing when to stop painting," Albeke said.

To most people art is their hobby, and science and math are their work. With Albeke it's different.

"Science and math are my hobbies," Albeke said, "A person should be subjected to many fields, not just art."

Albeke usually paints two to three hours a day.

"In the summer I'll paint landscapes and the winter portraits," said Albeke, "I like to paint life not from a photograph. They are not the colors and mood that can be seen in real life."

"I don't compare myself to another artist or someone in class," said Albeke. "I'm another artist and the way she paints, but I won't compare myself to them."

Pat Oden, a student at the College, and Bob Moravec, a former College student have a photography display in the library.

The majority of the pictures have been taken in national parks, such as Monterey, Calif. and Yosemite National Forest.

Oden prefers scenic photography as a hobby and especially enjoys photographing roses. His collection exceeds 100.

Moravec, also an education major in 1974-1976, enjoys using a 12 mm. fisheye lens for different effects ranging from beauty to comical distortion.

Oden and Moravec plan a photography tribute to Grand Teton National Park, Wyo. It will be presented in February and displayed in the College library.
