Reality class

"Comparative Realities", a seminar-styled psychology 199 course is being offered at the College spring term.

The social science department is sponsoring the course as part of a colloquium, meaning each term one teacher will instruct a special class in their field of knowledge or interest.

The course will involve discussions on the realities of various cultures and time. Students will study theorists such as Carl Jung and Carlos Castaneda.

"But the course will depend on what the people in the class are interested in," said Harriet Mason, instructor of the course.

The course will be offered on Wednesday evenings from 7 to 10 p.m.

For more information, contact Harriet Mason at 656-2631, ext. 208.

Reading tips

"Distar Techniques", a course incorporating teaching strategies, Distar sounds, reading preskills, word treatments, teaching take-home stories and behavior management, will be offered to all interested persons.

Elizabeth Hjorth, Lake Oswego, will instruct the class which is to begin Tuesday, Feb. 21, at 6:30 p.m. in Barlow Hall, room 253.

Information and pre-registration materials are available from the College by calling 656-2631, ext. 286.

Speech results

The College's forensics team placed four finalists in the fifth annual Smelt Classic Speech Tournament at Lower Columbia College in Longview, Wash., Feb. 11.

The four College finalists produced three third place trophies: Mitch Newton, interpretive; Mike Day, oratory; and Lisa Thomas, expository. Mardi Sayles was the fourth finalist, participating in novice oratory.

The Tournament of Champions will be the next tournament for the orators, and will be held at Linfield College in McMinnville, March 3 and 4.

Assertive focus

Mary Lynn Oldford, College counselor, will direct a Focus on Women seminar in "Assertiveness Training for Women" tomorrow.

The seminar, covering topics such as learning how to express your beliefs, feelings and wants in an honest, direct and appropriate way and learning to distinguish between assertive and aggressive responses, will be in the Community Center, room 117, from 7 to 10 p.m. Cost is $1.

Photo seminar

Two College photographers seminar Feb. 19 and 20 sponsored by the Professional Photographers of Oregon, Inc.

Brian Snook, The Print photo editor, and Lorraine Stratton, assistant photo editor, attended.

The youth seminar held in conjunction with the organization's thirty-first annual convention at the Jantzen Beach Thunderbird Hotel in Portland.

The seminar included workshops on various aspects of photography and training sessions with professional photographers.

Stratton entered photos in competition and was awarded two blues, a red and a white award based on a percentage scale.

Gardening

"Gardening Know How" is the title of a workshop presented by the College horticulture department Monday, Feb. 27 from 7 to 10 p.m.

The workshop, taught by Jack Thorsen, will be held at the Oak Grove Community School library, 1901 S.E. Oak Grove Blvd., Oak Grove.

Vegetables and small fruit cultural practices and fertilizing, and pruning of cane berries, bush fruit and vine fruits will be covered. A planting schedule will also be discussed.

The workshop will cost $1 per person and pre-registration is required by phoning 656-2631, ext. 232.

Female politics

Why women should become involved in politics, how to start, and the opportunities and obstacles they may encounter will be discussed with women in politics Tuesday, Feb. 28.

The Focus on Women workshop, titled "Women in Politics", will be directed by Darlene Hoohey, West Linn city council person, in the Community Center, room 117 from 7 to 10 p.m. Cost is $1.

Home buying

A workshop designed for Indo-Chinese persons on how to buy and pay for a home is being offered by the College this Saturday.

The instructor will be Paul Carrier, director of training for F. M. Tarbell Company, Realtors.

Topics to be covered in the workshop include "Values in America and the metropolitan area," "What to Look for in Selection of a Realtor and Real Estate," and "How to Qualify for a Real Estate Loan."

Translators will be in attendance.

The workshop is part of the English department's second language program and will be held Saturday, February 25 at 10 a.m.

For more information call Elizabeth Bentley, 659-5382, or Mrs. Marion Roddy, 654-6208.

Sex equity

Feminists Northwest will explore the many aspects of sex inequity in education and provide ideas for positive remedies during a workshop titled "Sex Equity" at the College, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 24 and 25.

The workshop will be held in the Community Center, room 117, from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days. Cost is $20 for the entire workshop or $15 for one day -- this includes a hot lunch.

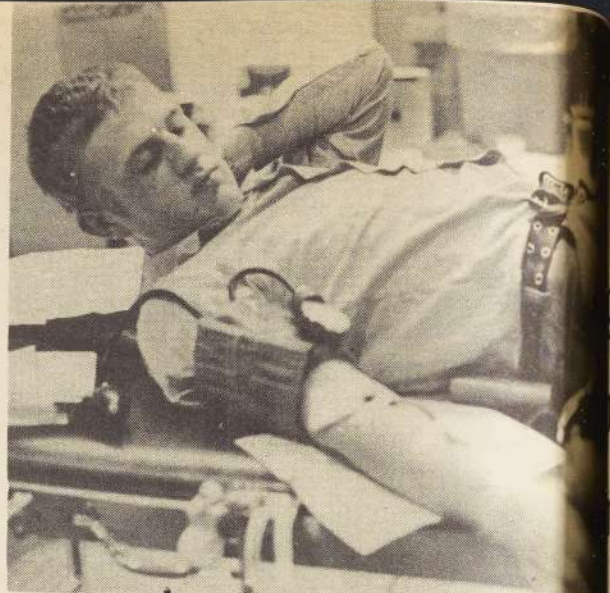

Early registration is advised by calling 656-2631, ext. 232.

Student tow

Amherst, Mass. (CH)—If you can't beat 'em, join 'em. That's what students at the University of Massachusetts have done in the unpleasant matter of having illegally parked cars towed from campus. The student senate approved a $35,000 allocation to purchase and maintain its own fleet of tow trucks.

Under the plan, illegally parked cars will still be towed and the owners will still be responsible for a towing fee. But there may be some consolation in knowing that the money is not going to some cold-hearted off-campus tow truck operator.

A petition of over 7,800 student signatures supported the new student-run towing service. Speaking in favor of the plan, one student leader pointed out that the students running the service are likely to be "more sensitive" when towing away their peers' illegally parked cars.

Donald House watches intently as the nurse removes a bandage from his arm after donating blood he donated at the Red Cross blood drive in the Community Center Mall last Wednesday. The Red Cross collected 63 gallons of blood. Approximately 20 of them were given in the name of Norm Grambusch, coordinator of food services for the College. Grambusch underwent open-heart surgery last week. Anyone who missed out and would like to donate blood will have another chance next term when the Red Cross returns.

ELC requests funds for fish-rearing facility

An Associated Student Government financed amount of $912 was requested by Jerry Hermann, of the Environmental Learning Center, for the completion of the fish-rearing pond at the College during last Thursday's ASG meeting.

If ASG does finance this project, $800 of the funds will be spent on 2,000 board feet of rough-sawn cedar, and the remaining $112 will be spent on rough-sawn cedar for handrails, Hermann said.

Other areas of importance covered during the meeting was the announcement that an authority from Community Colleges of Oregon Student Association and Commission (SAC) had presented views on use of space for campus activities.

Brandy Ham, game attendant, expressed concern ASG members on a resolution published in the issue of The Print.

Ham felt the article biased and a poor example of journalism.

A motion requesting a resolution from The Print was tabled until next week's meeting.

Scholars travel to Tacoma for regional College Bowl tournament

The College's College Bowl team will travel to Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma this Friday to compete in the regional tournament.

The College's team is the only two-year school to advance to the regional competition. Other schools are Oregon State University, University of Puget Sound and Pacific Lutheran University.

The team includes Dale Beaty, captain, Joe McFeron, John Umbreit, David Underwood and Mark Fuller, alternate. Andrews is the coach.

"I think the other four colleges are going to have an edge on us in academics," Feron said, "But we'll have an edge in general information."

The winner of the regional tournament will advance to the national tournament to be held in Miami in May. The tournament is sponsored by the Publisher's Digest Association and the Association of College Unions International.
