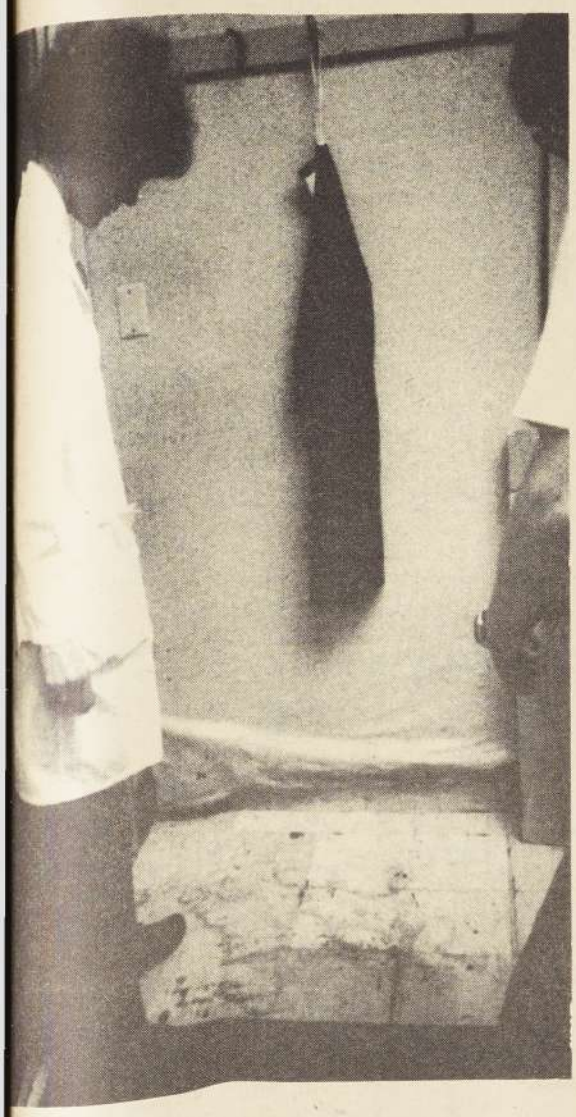
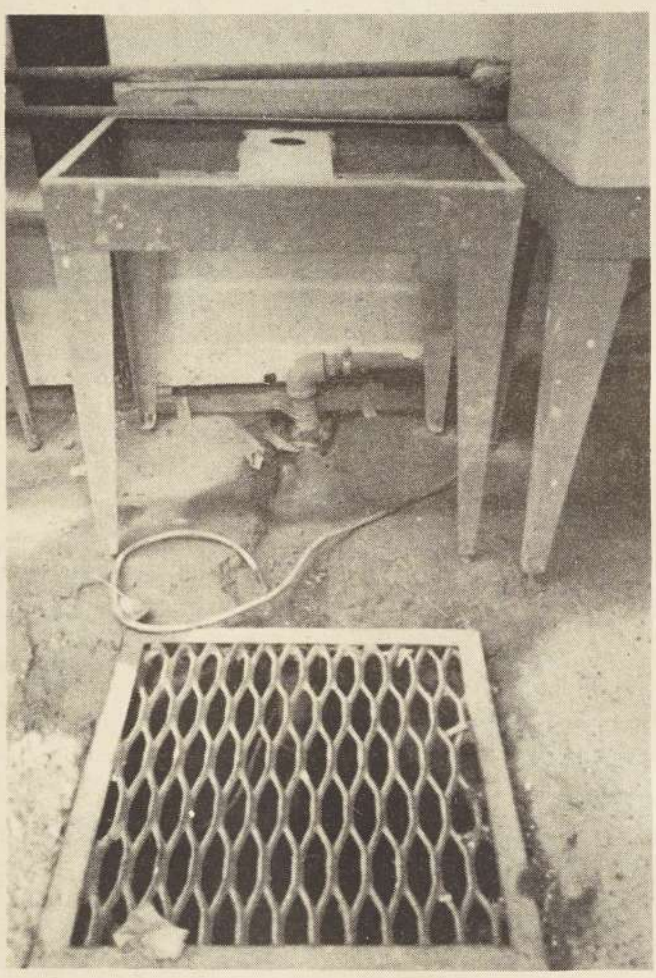
s plague faculty, students



Clockwise from top, a teaching assistant examines repaired floor where instructor Loren Struder fell through. Inadequate drainage in the Smuckers Art Center resulted in flooding four times last fall. The facilities in the College's home economics department are highly inadequate, consisting of two sinks, one stove, one sewing machine, cosmetology tables and work areas all in one room. Peeling paint and the inability to perform adequate maintenance make poor inspiration in the Art Center.



Photos by Brian Snook and Lorraine Stratton

SN: OL0055 Colors by Munsell Color Services Lab