

Men's baseball team wins some and loses some Cougars baseball team run like most chain are often hard to get when they fire they work. Game after game managers manage to fight the final innings. Last playing at home for time this season for the third time in a week overcame opponents big leads to go ahead in the final inning.

George Fox College was the victim of the chain saw fury of the Clackamas batting order. Going into the sixth inning the team had only managed to post three runs while the visitors boasted seven. Then Anderson, Snoderly, Riley, Quinn, Kline, and Northcutt all chopped out hits and when the dust had cleared George Fox had fallen.

Unfortunately they ran out of gas, for the next two games provided only a total of three runs and the team was left to do more watching than working.

The second game of the George Fox double-header showed Dave Snoderly, striking out six batters and allowing only one run. In the fourth inning Snoderly was relieved by Rob McClintock who demonstrated a variety of pitching styles. Bouncing back in tough situations McClintock allowed only one run but was forced to take the loss as the team could only muster one run. Steve Gustovich, second baseman, hit for a triple and a home run that accounted for the only team run.

Last Saturday, the team ran right into disaster against OCCAA defending champion Umpqua Community College. The teams managed to get six wet, windy, and muddy innings in before the game was called.

Golf team starts off with a disappointment

College golf team's first of the season last week, succeeded only in re-distinguished.

"We are going to improve considerably," Jim Hudson, College golf coach, said following the team's tenth place finish in The Willamette Invitational.

The University of Portland took low-gross honors with a combined team total of 452 strokes. They were followed by Umpqua with 462, which consisted of four players instead of the generally demanded six; Chemeketa with 469; Lewis and Clark at 474; and eight other teams struggling in with somewhat lifeless scores. Clackamas found its way into the scorer's table with a 517, only two teams--Linfield and Pacific--placed below that.

Individual winners were not officially recognized, but Steve Hanson of the University of Portland was acknowledged as medalist in the tournament.

Pat Odin of Clackamas finished with an 81, giving him fifth place, while Curt Adamski captured sixth with an 82.

Qualifying for the team is still in progress, and only the first and second men are exempt from requalifying.

Maynard returns to CCC team

Clackamas men's tennis team opened their 1978 season with a down note as they were defeated by Mt. Hood Community College, 9-0, last week at Clackamas.

announced that last years number one player, Mike Maynard, is returning to the team. In 1977, Maynard took the State championship in his bracket and was fourth at Regionals with a 22-2 record.

"We're really happy to have him back to strengthen our team," Taylor said. "He should help the team considerably in our bid for state."

"Judson Baptist, yesterday, was our first league match. Mostly we're still working on our strokes and consistency. We also have to determine out first six players," Taylor said.

The men return home this Friday against Chemeketa at 3 p.m. and then play Concordia, on Saturday at 1 p.m. and Linn-Benton next Tuesday at 3 p.m.
