Pamphlets

Historical, recreational, scientific information maps, and other kinds of reference material that is of interest is urgently needed for updating the pamphlet file at the College Library.

Files on subjects such as Bigfoot, space vehicles, wife beating, and cloning have already been started. Also, statistics, description, history, and travel information on Portland and Oregon are available.

"The pamphlet file has been out of date for some time, so we threw a lot of material out and are asking students, faculty and anyone who has material that would be of interest to bring it to the College library," said Eileen Fujii, bibliographical searcher for the library.

"We have ordered from the government documents that are statistical and philosophical and as much other material as our budget will allow," Fujii said, "but we still need a lot more."

"In the past the pamphlet file was not used as much as the other resources in the library, so we are trying to improve the file by making it a quick and current source of information," Fujii said.

Crime report

A fluorescent, invisible substance called detection powder is available for use at the College as a deterrent to theft and vandalism, according to Stan Johnson, security supervisor.

When exposed to moisture, such as perspiration on the hands, the powder leaves a stain. It is bright purple in color and is detectable for at least 72 hours after the theft or vandalism occurs, according to Johnson.

"The sociological effect within one's peer group is very effective as the stain is clearly visible," he said.

Books, wallets and purses are high on the list of stolen property at the College, according to Johnson.

Last year there were 10 books reported stolen per term from individuals leaving them unattended, Johnson cited.

"This happens all the time," he said. "Be sure and write your name in all your books and don't leave them lying around unattended."

This year parking violations and thefts have already been reported.

Last week, 13 tickets were handed out at the College for unauthorized parking.

A wallet containing $15 in cash and coin, and $45 in food stamps was stolen from the book drop outside the bookstore last week.

The women's locker room in Randall Hall was broken into over the weekend of Oct. 6, although nothing was stolen, Johnson said.

Carving contest

Halloween is approaching and that means Jack-O-Lanterns of every size and face will be scaring and delighting trick-or-treaters.

Associated Student Government is getting into the spirit of things with its pumpkin carving contest this Friday at noon.

Mike McCarty, ASG president, said that there will be a 25 cent entry fee and a $10 gift certificate for the winner. ASG will also supply the pumpkins.

During the contest, scheduled to last an hour, a disc jockey will be on hand to play tunes to carve by.

The only problem is just where to stage the event, said McCarty. If weather permits, it will be held outside. If it rains, which is common in Oregon, the event will take place in the Community Center over sheets of plastic to protect the floor from the mess.

The winner will be announced at the Halloween dance coming up on Oct. 28. The winner will also be presented with the gift certificate at the dance.

Big brother

According to Associated Student Government vice president, Dave Riggs, it was sympathy for the situation of his two year old, fatherless nephew, that started him recruiting applicants, on campus, for the Clackamas County "Big Brother" program.

"Since roughly one fifth of all referrals are placed," Riggs said, "there is a definite need for interested volunteers."

The program is part of a nationwide effort to provide an example for motherless girls or fatherless boys.

To illustrate the need, Riggs took the example of one specific referral, whom he gave the fictional name of Mark. Mark's father left home when he was two, but was around enough for his son to know who he was.

Mark's need for male companionship is obvious by his devotion to his uncle, Riggs said.

Anyone interested in devoting some of their time to a younger boy or girl, or having any questions, should speak with Dave Riggs in the community center.
