

Hats off

Mike McCarty and his slate of Associated Student Government officers deserve strong recognition for following through on some long-needed services for students.

Instigating a free legal aid service was suggested last year, with many giving up hopes of seeing it become a reality. Obviously, someone didn't.

McCarty faced a long trail of roadblocks and legal details, but managed to find Paul Krause, a retired attorney, who will donate free time to advise legal matters to CCC students, beginning Feb. 8. Additionally, Krause will help set up a future program of free legal aid.

Another program deserving applause is that of students being able to cut costs through a central book exchange. This program, still in the planning stage, will offer an alternative to students through book swapping.

These services were badly needed at the College. We hope students will become aware and use them whenever the need arises.

Congratulations McCarty and your organization, for posing alternatives to some other wise costly services. C.B.

Heart throbs

The Print is once again offering a special Valentine's Day classified section this year to College students, faculty, staff and administration.

Tell someone you love them on Valentine's Day in this special personal section.

Last year the Print donated one-half of the money raised for this section to the American Heart Association. Since we're traditionalists, we like to keep up with annual events and will also donate one-half of our funds raised to the American Heart Association.

Since we're also competitors, we'd like to make an even bigger contribution this year.

In the next few weeks Print staff members will be armed with classified ad forms and an offer you can't refuse.

If you're not confronted by these eager beavers, please feel free to call 656-2631, ext. 309, or stop by Trailer B anytime. C.B.

the print

19600 S. Mollalla Avenue, Oregon City, Oregon 97045
Offices: Trailer B; telephone: 656-2631, ext. 309 or 310

editor Cyndi Bacon * news editor Scott Starnes arts editor Leanne Lally * sports editor Mark McNeary
photo editor Kelly Laughlin * staff writers Happie Thacker, Mike Koller, Elena Vancil, Brenda Nolan,
Don Ives, Steve McPherson, Tommy Clark, Ramona Isackson, James Rhoades, Brian Rood
staff photographers Greg Klenzie, Charlie Wagg, Pat Carlson * cartoonist Mary Cuddy * graphic designer Bev Boston production manager Janet Vockrodt business manager Mark Barnhill * professional adviser Suzie Boss

The Print, a member of the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association, aims to be fair and impartial journalistic medium covering the campus community as thoroughly as possible. Opinions expressed in The Print do not necessarily reflect those of the CCC administration, faculty or the Associated Student Government.

Page 2

feedback

To the Editor:

The Oregon Student Lobby is currently working on legislation that would appropriate $3.7 million for day care for the children of low income students in Oregon's community colleges and four year public colleges and universities.

The success of this legislation will depend on providing legislators with facts on the economic advantages of assisting low income students with day care.

I am attempting to gather information concerning this on our campus and need people to contact me who:

1. Are former students and have received day care assistance while attending school and are currently employed and self-supporting.

2. Have had to quit school or attend on a part-time basis because of the lack of affordable day care services.

This information will be crucial to the success of the day care legislation. If you have information about these matters please contact Happie Thacker at 656-2631, ext. 309 and leave a message so you can be reached. Your assistance will be greatly appreciated by those who are trying to make the student a little easier and more equitable.

Happie Thacker
19190 S. Creek
Oregon City, OR
631-2631

KAMPUS KWIPS

BY Jim Anderson

Clackamas Community College

