Don't forget

People who are embarrassed by forgetting a name, directions to a friend's house or the most important event in a book need fear no more. Memory class is here.

Warren Pickett, member of the Playgoers Theatre Guild, will teach the class Tuesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. The class will involve discussions of the theory of memory and techniques on how to improve it.

"All of us deal with memory," said Pickett, "and some of us have problems with it." Pickett said he thinks the class will be useful to anyone who has problems remembering anything from names to colors to lay outs, to what you've just read.

"I'm a theater director and producer, and I know about memorizing lines," he said. Pickett also has a degree in psychology.

Homework will consist of remembering things, so don't forget—it's Tuesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m.

New kiln

The College art department will begin using a new and safer kiln for their projects later this term.

The new kiln will be located outside in a wooden house. Construction has already begun and, according to Faculty Development and Planning Officer Don Fisher, will be done by about the last week of April.

"The purpose of the project is to make it safer," he said. "The old kiln was built inside and is only supposed to last for two to three years. We rebuilt it and decided to place it outside in an open space," he said.

Funds for the project are from the College's capital projects funds.

Cancellation

A health Insurance Seminar for insurance agents scheduled for Saturday at the College has been cancelled.

Scheduling conflicts and a lack of enrollment were given as reasons for the cancellation by Gib Bloomquist, College job skills improvement coordinator.

Career day

A career day for persons interested in state civil service occupations is planned for April 18, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., in the Community Center Mall.

Representatives from the state Department of Revenue, Department of Environmental Quality, and a variety of human resource agencies, will be on campus to answer questions.

"For those interested in working with people, we will have resources here from Adult and Family Services, the Em- and office staff," said Marv Thornley, College placement officer.

Thornley said the civil service representative will be available for questions "on a one-to-one basis."

Couples class

Vince and Mary Fitzgerald, a husband and wife counseling team, will discuss communication tools for relationships in "Experiencing a Relationship," a seminar at the College on April 19 in the Community Center, room 101, at 7 p.m.

The seminar is designed to aid partners in a relationship to improve their communication. It is important that both persons attend.

The seminar is sponsored by Focus on Women and the Men's Resource programs at the College. The cost is $1 and persons interested in attending are encouraged to pre-register by calling the College's Community Services Office, 656-2631, ext. 208.

Dress success

Ideas for women on job search and success techniques will be presented in two Focus on Women seminars in April at the College.

"Resume Writing and Interviewing" will be taught Thursday in Randall Hall, room 101, at 7 p.m. by Dorothy Intile of Georgia Pacific. The class will provide ways to market abilities to the right employer.

"Dress for Success" will be offered on April 18, in Barlow Hall, Board Room A, at 7 p.m., by Bev McGill, a fashion and modeling consultant. The class will cover many areas concerning wardrobe planning, including cost, color coordination and complimenting your shape with the correct fashions.

Both classes cost $1 per person. Those interested in attending are encouraged to pre-register by calling the College Community Services Office, 656-2631, ext. 208.

Pick a plot

The College still has garden plots available through its Green Fingers Project, according to Community Services Coordinator Bill Hargadine.

For more information concerning the Green Fingers Project, contact the College Community Services office, 656-2631, ext. 208.

There will be a Green Fingers Garden Clinic on Monday in the Community Center small dining room at 7 p.m. There is no charge, and the participants will learn tips helpful to family gardeners.

resident of the College district for a $3 fee. The gardens will be open approximately May 1 and will close at the end of October.

Equinox

The annual conference for public-interest organizations, cooperative groups and small businesses, the Third Annual Equinox Gathering, will be April 12 through 15 at Vashon Island, Wash.

Part of the agenda includes workshops in 20 major public-interest areas, including: communications, economics, energy, environment, spirit, women and men, personal growth and land and shelter.

The three-day CAREL sponsored event costs $30 for adults or $23 for adults for attending two of the three days. For more information, contact CAREL at 485-0366, Eugene.

Journalists meet

The 1979 Clackamas Journalism Conference, for high school journalists from throughout Clackamas County, is planned for April 20 at the College.

A full day of workshops has been scheduled, with professionals coming to share their expertise with student reporters and photographers. The second annual journalism conference is being hosted by the College Student Publications program.

Among the many workshop leaders will be Ben Hansen, editor of the Enterprise Courier, discussing "Words and Wit"; John Denny, sports editor of the Milwaukee Review, talking about writing sports feature stories; Jim Folts, photojournalism instructor from Oregon State University, discussing photo editing and Pat Rosenkranz, a freelance and studio photographer, who will offer tips to student photographers.

Speaker at the afternoon session of the conference will be Elizabeth Yeats, a Portland attorney, who will discuss student press rights.

Also at the afternoon session, winners of a media contest for high school students will be announced. First through third place winners will be named in a number of writing and photography categories. In addition, winners of a scholarship competition for high school journalists will be announced at the conference. Four scholarships will be awarded to high school journalists who plan to participate in the College Student Publications program during the 1979-80 school year.

"We hope the conference will help high school journalists become better writers, photographers and editors," said Suzie Boss, College student publications adviser. "We also hope the conference will encourage talented students to participate in the journalism program here next year."
