Biology classes study on campus

By James Rhoades
Of The Print

Biology 103 classes are taking advantage of the unique opportunity to study the environment of the College this week.

Daryl Hampton, instructor, said, "In Biology 103 class, we will take the trips instead of working in the lab. We use the field trips by working outside, using the facilities on campus as an outdoor lab. We will be looking at the plants and animals around the campus."

Hampton is taking his class to the environmental Learning Center this week, "so we can take aquatic samples. Then we will take them back to the lab to get an idea of the diversity of organisms living in the pond. Then, they do a little research paper on the results," Hampton said.

This is not the first time the biology department has done such research on campus. "We have been doing it for a few years now," said Hampton, "and we have been really happy with it."

The field trips, which began Tuesday and will run through Thursday, last about two hours. In addition to Hampton's trip to the ELC, Biology 103 students also have a choice of attending John Snively's plant identification and ecology trip or Shirley Cressler's campus field trip.

Bookstore remodeling Board awards bids

The College Board of Education, during its monthly meeting Wednesday, awarded bids totaling $67,000 for remodeling of the College bookstore.

Contractors, Inc., of Sherwood, was awarded the contract based on its bid of $57,667, with an additional $9,000 set aside for equipment and furnishings. Due to the rapidly increasing student population at the College, the bookstore has become too small to handle the volume of books and other materials the students require.

In other business, the board awarded a bid of $22,080 to ECRM for purchase of an optical character reader to be used in the secretarial science department's word processing courses. The bulk of the money for the optical character reader will be paid from a $20,000 grant from the State Vocational Fund.

The board also hired Dorothy Waltie as a nursing program instructor. Waltie has 20 years of practical nursing experience and has a master's degree in nursing from the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center. She previously taught at Mt. Hood Community College.

The board also approved resolutions authorizing the Clackamas County treasurer to act as investing officer for the College and establishing an in-state residency policy for College students. Except for extraordinary circumstances, students will need to be residents in state 90 days prior to the start of class attendance to be considered Oregon residents.

Hakanson honored

College President John Hakanson has been elected to a position on the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges' Board of Directors.

policies for some 18 community colleges; I'm really excited about it," he said.

Hakanson will begin serving a three-year term on July 1. He is one of 18 board members chosen from two-year colleges throughout the nation. Hakanson is the fifth person from Oregon ever to be elected to the AACJC board.

Hakanson said he was very honored and already has a few plans in the making.

"I would like to see people on unemployment able to go to school," said Hakanson.

"This organization is the lobbying and public voice," said Hakanson. "They set the

Enjoy life

"You Deserve It Baby" is the title of a seminar on ways to add pleasure to a person's life and find the time to enjoy it.

The seminar will be offered through the College Focus on Women program on May 29, at 7 p.m. in the Community Center Fireside Lounge.

Mimi Weiss, a consultant and psycho-therapist in private practice, will direct the seminar.

The registration fee is $2 and persons may pre-register by contacting the Community Services office, 656-2631, ext. 208.
