Refurbishing on schedule

The food service had a elift over Christmas break The College spent $68,000 revitalize the cafeteria. atrons can now choose from a andwich bar, salad bar, essert case and a pizza oven. to types of soups are offered Brewton Construction will omplete the facelift within four eeks by extending the afeteria wall. The new front of e cafeteria will be a glass-alled "greenhouse effect." fty more seats will be gained the addition.

The cafeteria is also switing to china plates, instead of lastic, because of the alating cost of plastic plates. lastic will be used only for cofe and sliverware, according Norm Grambusch, food serce supervisor.

The process of choosing a reer is becoming less difficult, ys Sue Jacobs, coordinator the College's new Career evelopment Center located in

The center, which Jacobs escribes as a "clearinghouse career search materials and ublic and the services are free

elp people help themselves,

The primary objective is to

is open to the

says, pointing to

Vednesday, January 14, 1981 $ 49,35 total

ailer D

ources.

acobs

The customer count as of Jan. 7 was 1,800, which was more than usual, according to Grambusch. "We start one cash register going then start the other going between 10:30 a.m and 1:30 p.m. when there is an overload," providing four registers at peak times.

The hours have not changed. The cafeteria is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Hatfield warns of belt tightening Committee, which Hatfield chairs, has control of approx-

Oregon Senator Mark Hatfield warned the Tri-City Chamber of Commerce last week, "...like it or not, we're all going to have to bite the bullet."

The Senate Appropriations

Career development available shelves of loose-leaf pamphlets, books, magazines, boxes of film strips, microfiche projectors, and a computer ter-

"People can come into the center at any stage of their lives or education and get some idea as to where to go next in their career search," says

provide a job placement ser-

Although the office doesn't says

minal

Jacobs

imately $100 billion per fiscal year, or about 40 percent of the total national budget. Hatfield sees changes ahead for government spending. "Since Roosevelt was president, the into an undeclared war. I never government has had a 'Politics of Plenty.' The idea is, throw enough money at a problem and you'll solve it. Give the military enough money, and we'll be safe. I'm in opposition to that," Hatfield said.

One area that the Republican senator believes needs updating is defense. demand that we put a cost effectiveness program to the military," he said. Hatfield has been an outspoken opponent of the controversial M-X missle system. "I don't want to see millions upon millions of dollars spent on a missle, or a tank or a submarine, that can be destroyed by a weapon that costs a few hundred dollars to make," he said.

Hatfield is also against draft gistration. "I feel that an inregistration. "I feel that an in-voluntary draft is an odious form of forced labor," he said. 'We would never have been in Vietnam as long as we were if President Kennedy and President Johnson didn't have a They had an unlimited draft. supply of young men to push want to see a president have that kind of power.

The Senator's speech forecast economic troubles. Said Hatfield, "What we need is an economic plan wherein everybody takes the medicine, not just some groups. Everybody. This is not Presi-dent Carter's making. It is not Mr. Ford's making. It's the day of accountability that was started by President Roosevelt."

However, said Hatfield, the problem is one not easily solv-ed. "We cannot solve the economic problems on a yearly basis. It's a long-time problem. And the answer isn't in tax cuts. I have voted against every tax cut, and will continue to do so, until we get the economics of this nation on better ground " ground.

Another area of American Another area of Fullening life where future belt tightening may be felt is college tuition. don't like the fact that anyone can get tuition money, whether they need it or not. The money has to be there for the people who need it." he said.

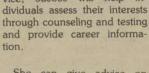

NOW OPEN AMIGO'S LOUNGE

Featuring Happy Hour 4-6 pm, Mon-Fri.

We're only 1/2 mile north of C.C.C. on the right side of Molalla Ave.

656-5115

3X7 2,35per Inch D.C.

Jacobs will help in-

She can give advice on resume writing and offer practice interviews that can be video-taped for review.

For information on the Career Development Center, contact Sue Jacobs at 657-8400, ext. 396.

Task force recommends faculty compensation task force headed by A counselor Vince Fitzgerald has handed its recommendations for faculty advising and advisto College ing compensation to Co President John Hakanson.

Included in the list of recommendations is a description of the advising teachers that are going to perform, the role the counselors will play, and the level of monetary compensa-tion teachers would receive because of the addition to their workloads

Right now, the task force is looking into the cost factors of compensation. "We're in the compensation. "We're in the process of discussing how much it will cost," Fitzgerald said. "Dr. Hakanson wanted more detail on how much money it will cost for the compensation.

According to the recommen-dations, faculty advising is providing: accurate information on class selection; on-going "pro-gram" consultation; and career information. All faculty are ex-pected to advise informally (without extra pay) as part of their original teaching responsibilities. Many, if not most, instructors are already performing these tasks.

The task force on retaining students through advising, counseling and career planning has recommended the role of counselors to be: providing files to faculty; providing a clearing-house for advising materials; acting as liason and consultant for department advisors; pro-viding in-service training for advisors; providing a back-up op-tion for undecided majors, general studies, part-time students, evening students, Guided Studies, and students with grade with special needs. The rest of compensation, either monetary or in benefits, is still being researched by the task force. A decision from Hakanson is hoped to come within two weeks so advising and compensation can start before the end of winter term.

Page 3