

Soccer team loses to Lane Community 0-7

The Clackamas Community College soccer team, coached by Janos Szanto, is determined to have a great year, probably the best ever.

With seven returning and 12 new players, "We've got the team," second-year player Brian Gorsek said. "When we get the teamwork together, we'll be unstoppable."

After practicing for only two weeks before their first game last Wednesday, the team lost to Lane Community College 0-7. Lane had been practicing about five weeks and had also played in a tournament shortly before playing Clackamas.

"We lost to Lane because we worked individually," Gorsek said.

The team changed their pace last Saturday with a win over Portland Community College 2-1. Quite a few of the players complained of bruises afterwards, and said they should have scored higher but were happy they won. Coach Szanto said their toughest competitors should be PCC and Tacoma.

Jeff Vass, a new player from Centennial High School, has just returned from Hungary where he played on a second-division team, which is like a first division junior team. Vass is considered one of the best high school soccer players in Oregon. "He's certainly going to be an asset to our team," Szanto said.

Strong points for the team include the ability to get along with one another and the wide variety of individual talent.

The weak points for the team is the lack of teamwork and a weaker midfield, but with practice and communication these are expected to improve.

Second-year player Rick Tounsand summed up the team when he said, "the enthusiasm of the young and experience of the older players should help us very much. It's an exciting communication."

Team support has been much better this year to the appreciation of the whole team. The season ends in about seven weeks. Until then there will be two games a week on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The team's next game is the first home game against Lower Columbia on Wednesday, Oct. 3 at 3 p.m..
