

Garver's girls prepared for Championships

Since their last game of the regular season on Feb. 9, the league champion Clackamas Community College women's basketball team has been busy preparing for the upcoming Northwest Athletic Association of Community Colleges (NWAACC) Championships. Eight top teams from Oregon and Washington will compete in the tournament.

The games will be played at Central Washington University on Feb. 28, Mar. 1, and 2. The Cougars will go against Skagit Valley College in their first game of the Championships at 10 a.m. on Feb. 28.

Head Coach Phil Garver is optimistic about the teams chances for victory in the tournament. "The three weeks layoff has me worried," Coach Garver said of the teams recent break in action after the season ended. However, Garver also sees the layoff as a good chance for the team members to regain their health and allow any injuries to heal for the tough games they will face in the tournament.

Coach Garver feels that the overall talent of the Cougar team will give them the edge over the competition. "We have 5 gals that are all-state players," Garver said of the highly talented Clackamas team adding, "If you're a good ball player, you'll play well under any situation."

Garver was able to watch their upcoming Skagit Valley opponent play in a recent game. He feels that the Cougars biggest task in the first game of the tournament will be to shut down Skagit Valley's 6-foot-2 post position.

Cougar Forward, Jeanne Doherty, also studied the Skagit Valley team. "They don't have real strong guards," Doherty said of their upcoming opponents offense. "We're really strong in the guard position." Doherty stressed the need for strong guards to pull their opponents defense out and, therefore, open up the inside shooters.

One of those strong guards which Doherty is referring to is the teams leading scorer, Joanne Ineman. Ineman is a sophomore transfer student from the University of Arizona. While at Clackamas, Ineman has succeeded in breaking the record for the most points scored in a game, against Lower Columbia Community College, with 57 points. She is also described by Coach Garver as being the person who "has held our team together."

Ineman, however, accredits the teams successful 24 win-2 loss season to something which she calls "the winning attitude. I think we started the season and knew we were going to be a good team, then once we started beating teams we really wanted to win," Ineman explained.

Ineman, like her coach and teammates, expressed great optimism for the upcoming championships. "I think we have a good chance. We have as much of a chance as anyone to go out there and win it," Ineman said assuringly.

Ineman also expressed some concern over the three-week break from action between the end of the season and the start of the championships. "Our practices consist mostly of conditioning. We'll be well conditioned (for the championships) but a little relaxed on our execution," Ineman predicted.

Clackamas goes into the tournament Thursday ranked number three behind Green River Community College and Spokane Community College. The Cougars did not go up against either of these teams during the regular season, and, as Coach Garver says, "Anything can happen."

The Clackamas Community College Golf team is just two days away from setting its line-up for the coming golf season.

Coach Jim Hudson has set qualifying dates for the team March 1-4. The top scorers out of the four-day event will represent the College at the upcoming Willamette University Golf Invitational March 18 at Illahe Hills Golf Club in Salem, Oregon.

Coach Hudson said the prospects for a good season are there and they should develop as the weather improves and the players are able to practice more.

The team will spend a lot of time in Washington State this year, as they travel to Tacoma, Tumwater, Pasco, Royal Oaks Golf Club just outside of Vancouver, Aberdeen and Mint Valley Golf Club in Longview.

The Cougar stickmen will be hosting Idaho's Treasure Valley Community College on March 23 and May 13.

Other teams that will be guests of the Cougars at Arrowhead Golf Club in Molalla include Grays Harbor, Lower Columbia and Clark College.
