

the Print

Clackamas Community College

Vol. XVIII, No. 17

Wednesday, March 6, 1985

College Board selects five presidential finalists

Clackamas Community College's Board of Directors chose five out of six top candidates recommended by the presidential screening committee as the final few who will be interviewed for the job of College president at a special meeting held Feb. 28.

Each candidate will be interviewed on campus by the Board between the dates of March 7-21. The interviews will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Barlow Board Room.

The names of the final candidates and the dates they will be interviewed are as follows:

March 7-Dr. Paul E. Kreider, currently serving as vice-president of Mount Hood Community College

March 12- Dr. Kenneth J.

Minnaert, who is the president of South Puget Sound Community College in Olympia, Wash.

March 14- Dr. John S. Keyser, vice president for instruction at Linn-Benton Community College

March 20- Dr. Marijane A. Paulsen, vice president/dean of instruction at the College of the Canyons in Valencia, Calif.

March 21- Dr. Marvin W. Weiss, president at Northeastern Junior College in Sterling, Colo.

According to information in a March 5 Oregonian article, Weiss, 51, has been president of Northeastern Junior College for 5 1/2 years. Former jobs for Weiss included serving at the College for 10 years, teaching at Forest Grove High School and working as a vice principal at St. Helens Senior High School.

Kreider, 53, has served at Mount Hood Community College since 1980. His career in education has included working as a school psychologist with the Lansing, Mich., public schools, a clinical psychologist at the Veterans Hospital in Battle Creek, Mich., as well as serving as director of special education and vocational rehabilitation at Mankato State University in Minnesota and interim president of Clark County Community College in Las Vegas, Nev.

Minnaert, 42, joined South Puget Sound Community College in 1975 as dean of instruction, and eventually became the president of the college in 1980. His career in education includes working as a high school teacher in 1966 and as a curriculum specialist at Colorado State University.

Keyser, 40, has been with Linn-Benton Community College since 1982. He has previously served for five years at Mount Hood Community College as dean of student relations and at the University of Colorado as administrative assistant and assistant director of admissions.

Paulsen, 39, has worked at the College of the Canyons since 1983. Other jobs for her included working as a biology teacher at Rio Hondo College in Whittier, Calif. and chairman of the department of biology and later dean of science technology at Indian Valley College in Novato, Calif.

Mini-courses part of enrollment effort

By J. Jason
Of The Print

A major part of the Clackamas Community College Enrollment Management Plan is the newly devised Spring Break Short Courses, offered on different dates between March 2-23. A total of 30 new courses will be offered.

Organized by Lee Fawcett, assistant dean of student services and chairman of the Enrollment Management Planning Committee, the main goal of the new courses is to increase low enrollment by attracting potential students. "There are many potential students who aren't able to take full-term college courses," Fawcett said.

The suggestion for the short courses was first made by the plan's Marketing Task Force. "Mount Hood Community College has tried the same thing and it seems successful," Fawcett said.

The courses themselves are organized under eight title areas: Math and Science, Computer Literacy, Communication Skills, Business and Management, Career Planning, Opportunities of the '80s, Focus on Women and House and Garden.

"Many of the classes are being taught by the same instructors who teach the full-term classes," Fawcett added.

Some classes will be non-credit courses, but many will contain one credit. "There are some which will be held on one-day workshops. Others will be on two consecutive Saturdays or on evenings. The credit classes still must meet 10 hours to be eligible for a credit," Fawcett said.

Registration has already started and it is designed to be an easy process. Phone-in and walk-in enrollment will be emphasized.

Another similar "short course" plan is in the works for the end of spring term. The planning committee will discuss and organize this project following winter term.

COMPUTER LITERACY--instructor Linda Lanning from IBM gives lecture to College personnel on how to use new computer located in Counseling Department.

What's inside

ELC auction offers unique items for bidding

Page 2

"Towards Zero" opens March 7

Page 3

Cagers, grapplers finish up seasons

Page 4

