Don Latarski group to entertain students

By Amy Doane

To some students, nothing could be finer than an afternoon spent listening to relaxing entertainment unless, of course, it was an afternoon spent listening to Don Latarski and his Jazz band. That opportunity will present itself this Friday as Alcohol Awareness Week comes to a close.

Events will be taking place throughout the week that will help inform the public about the dangers and problems of alcohol consumption.

Don Latarski will be performing during the last hour of a non-alcoholic "happy hour" that lasts from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.

What does jazz music have to do with Alcohol Awareness Week? Daniel Hilts, ASG president, said that jazz music tied in well with the happy hour and that it would compliment it better than say Rock music.

"I'm not saying that only Jazz music ties in well for the happy hour, but it does compliment it well and Don Latarski just happen to be available at the time," Hilts noted.

This will not be the first time Don Latarski and his band have played on the College's campus. Latarski played last year and the performance went over well. Latarski's repeat performance should be one worth viewing.

Friday, October 25th at 12:00 is a date and time you will not want to miss. So make a note of it and catch it.

Here's to jazz music and Don Latarski. Bottom's up!

The 'Edge' is dull

By Thad Kreisher

"The Jagged Edge" might have been good if it had been a Monday Night Movie on Channel two and not a feature-length film. Unfortunately, this is not the case.

"The Jagged Edge" is not a film to see for action's sake, for the sole reason that it doesn't have any. And even though it boasts several big-name stars, the acting wasn't particularly stunning either.

The movie is about Jack Forester, the editor of the San Francisco Times, who is portrayed by Jeff Bridges. Early on in the film his wife, Page Forester, is brutally raped and murdered in their weekend beach house. Forester however, receives only a bump on the head from the assailant.

Naturally, he is arrested and accused of her murder. Protecting Forester from the onslaught of public prosecutor Craszn, a character so ridiculously despicable that it's unbelievable, is Meryl Streep.

For a good hour the film inches forward through Streep's investigation of the crime and her seduction at the hands of Jack Forester. Both are very boring. Of course, included in this fun-filled hour are equally boring attempts at dramatic sub-plots and Streep's conflict with the cold-blooded Craszn.

I managed to stay awake through all this however, thinking that it had to get better. Well, it did, but not much.

The trial scene, while mildly entertaining, was far too cliché. It reminded me of an old Perry Mason re-run with Streep as Mason. It has an old judge, a good-guy lawyer and a greedy bad-guy lawyer. It had twists, testimonies, and witnesses, all with something to hide. The only thing it lacked was originality.

In the end, Streep gets Forester acquitted only to find out later that he actually did it. Forester tries to murder her, and she ends up killing him.

No one should have to pay five dollars to be bored for ninety minutes only to face the let down of such a predictable ending. "The Jagged Edge" uses an over-used, run down theme, and I do not recommend seeing it. If you want to be bored and disappointed, stay home and watch the Monday Night Movie. At least that way you'll save yourself five dollars.

Campus clubs

Diversity is the key

By Kathy Jones

Hmm....Let see....Business Club, Ski Club, Bowling Club, Drama Club, which one should I choose?

In case you didn't know, there is wide variety of clubs to choose from at the College. Everything from bowling and skiing, to Spanish Club and drama, plus everything in between can be found here at the College for anyone who is interested in taking part.

In an interview with ASG Vice President Shawn Waterberg, he tells me that "it takes motivated people with common interest to form a club." When I asked Shawn at what time the majority of the clubs will begin forming, he told me that "because of people having to get adjusted to their classes, and becoming used to their schedules, it usually takes anywhere between 3 and 4 weeks into the school year for people to begin forming clubs."

I was interested as to what it takes to start a club, so going over some information given to me by Shawn, I have found that the first step to forming a club, is to find an advisor, who must be a member of the College staff. Secondly, you must submit the clubs constitution to the ASG through its vice president. Third, it must go before the ASG for approval.

Once approval is received, the club will be officially recognized by the College, and the ASG will allocated $50.00 to the club for expenses. The Student Activities Office will also help the club in flyer and poster making. While talking with Shawn, he told me "If any one is interested in forming a club, I would be glad to help them in any way."

Clubs are the life of the campus, in that they provide opportunities for social interaction outside of the classroom. Clubs are also an opportunity for reaching a goal and receiving personal satisfaction.

The key word to forming or joining a club is motivation. If you are a motivated person or group of people who are serious about what you are doing, then you will go far. The most common reason for club abandonment is lack of motivation. The key members of the club leave or graduate, and without their motivation force the club folds. So c'mon, get motivated, be someone, make yourself known, go out and join a club, and get involved.

Do you like to have fun, make new friends, and meet people? Then join the bowling club.

If you're a person who enjoys friendly competition, likes to have fun, and take part in a good source of exercise, then the bowling club is for you.

No experience is necessary, we have a professional coach to teach you everything you need to know about bowling, and, if you already know how to bowl, he can help you improve your technique, and bring your scores up.

The bowling club meets once a week at Canby Bowl at 3 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Bowling is great fun, whether you are a beginning or an experienced bowler. We meet at the college, then car-pool to Canby Bowl. If you are interested in joining us just sign up at the Student Activities Office or contact club president Michael Wright at 656-9663 or club secretary Kathie Jones at 266-6309.
