

THE PRINT

Lip sync may be cancelled

By Fritz Wenzel

Editor

Though it is teetering on the brink of cancellation unless more people sign up to participate, the Associated Student Government will host a lip sync contest this Friday in the community center in response to requests for the event by students.

An audition that was scheduled for tomorrow in the Community Center was scraped, but participants are to submit tapes of their songs to the ASG office Wednesday, ASG vice president Shawn Waterburg said. The audition was to notify participants of the rules of the event, to make sure there are no duplications of songs, to allow the ASG to establish a performance order, as well as to give participants a chance to submit a tape of the song they intend to use in the contest.

"I think it should go over very well," Dan Hiltz, ASG president said. "Anytime you get students interested in something, you should try to go for it, within reason," he said. The lip sync contests tend to be very popular, though we don't plan to have one every week," he said.

Prizes for the contest are in cash, with the winner receiving $25, second place netting $15, and third place getting $10.

The ASG also will have a new administrative assistant to the president as Sheri Blanken-

Photo by Dan Wheeler

Winter term schedules hold organizational meeting in Randall lobby. The turnout was larger than expected.

ship is sworn in on Thursday at the regularly scheduled meeting. Blankenship was selected for the position through an application and review process that was just recently completed.

The committee that made the selection consisted of Hiltz, advisor Paul Killo, senator Kelly O'Rourke and two students at large. Blankenship will receive a tuition waiver of $200 per term starting Winter term for her participation in ASG, Hiltz said.

In other ASG news, Hiltz said preparations for the holiday dance scheduled for Dec. 19 are on schedule.

The dance will be a testing ground for the ASG on a variety of fronts, including a full snack bar run by Phi Beta Lambda, a competition between campus clubs for a canned food drive, and a caroling competition, according to student activities director Breck Jacobs.

Public Safety issues auto stickers to staff, students

The staff and students of The College will be issued green and white bumper stickers for their motorized vehicles starting at Winter term registration that will help the public security department keep track of cars and people, according to a memo recently released from president Keyser's office.

The memo says that the reason for the stickers is to help public safety officers notify people if there are problems with lights left on, accidents, or other problems relating to motorized vehicles. It says the stickers will also be a positive public relations or marketing tool because of their high visibility.

The memo from Keyser urged students and staff to participate in the program, which is not mandatory.

Each sticker is numbered, and records will be kept on file at the Public Safety trailer. Gloria Tomlin, secretary to president Keyser said that "I still see the old red and blue stickers when I'm out driving. It is nice because I can say that 'there goes one of us,' and I think that is good public relations."

Clackamas Community College

505

