

HCE expose' displays own brand of music

By Bret Hodgert
Staff Writer

"Here Comes Everybody," the three piece band from the greater Portland area, played last Wednesday, Feb. 5 in the Community Center. Two of the band members, Rene' Ormae, (keyboards/vocals), and Michael Jarmer, (vocals and percussion), are Clackamas alumni. Ormae studied here for three years as a music major, and Jarmer, former "Rhapsody" editor, for two.

The band first started playing publicly last October. Their music is an interesting blend of styles consisting mainly of "The Talking Heads," "Wall of Voodoo," and "Oingo Boingo." Covers of songs by "The Talking Heads," and "Wall of Voodoo" are included in their line-up.

Most of their songs show a surrealistic outlook on life. Jarmer said, "When the band writes a song, the main concentration is on the lyrics. Things like 'Ooooh Ooooh Baby Baby' are definitely out."

Bassist Alan Hunter seems to be the dark horse of the group. He has been playing bass for ten years. When he is not playing with the band, he is a self-employed as a Japanese technical translator. However, due to personal reasons, Hunter will soon be leaving the band.

When questioned on how they came upon their rather unusual name, Jarmer explained that "Here Comes Everybody" is a character in the novel, "Finnegan's Wake" by James Joyce. He is a Dublin bartender who falls asleep and dreams the history of the world.

Photo by Dan Wheeler

Spastic Michael Jarmer (center) keeps time with the other members of HCE, Rene' Ormae (left) and Alan Hunter (right).

TV continued from Page 4.

As a whole, the TV family was very moralistic and socially conscious. They were a traditional lot who deemed higher education mandatory for any acceptable measure of success. Just as to what constituted success was very clear. I can still hear June Cleaver's proud testimony, "Oh Ward, I'm so proud of Wally. He made it through college, he's an executive, he has his own house, and doesn't he have the most beautiful wife and children. He's such a success."

A very amusing world.

The few people I have known who experienced the fifties first hand assure me that this is not so. They say that the TV family was as funny then as it is now. However, for those of us who weren't there, the fifties will always be "Beaver Cleaver."

I cannot help but wonder if the TV families of the eighties will be as funny to our grandchildren.

To Mike:

Meet ya at the park after Midnight.
Love, Marci and Krister.

To Chiquita:

You're the pick of the bunch! We already miss you.
Love, Marci and Kristen

To Allen:

Hang ten, Gumby!
Love, Marci and Kristen

To Kri:

You're a muffin! Thanks for being you! You keep me in stitches! Don't choke!
Love, Moss

To Chiquita:

Roses are red, violets are blue. You're the best banana we ever knew!
Your Groupies

February 11, 1986

To Keith:

Hey Cutie! If you'll be my valentine, I'll be yours.
Love, Kristen

To Mike:

Happy Valentine's Day!
Love, BOTH your friends

To Archie:

I want to be your cupid on Valentine's Day. Will you let me?
Love, Thumper

To John McKinney:

Poison my arrow. Be my valentine.
Love, Pinky

To Charito Walsh:

Have a wonderful, wonderful, wonderful... Valentine's Day.
John Young

To My Valentine...

To Pattie G.:

This is for you because if I didn't you would not get one.
PDL

To Lisa:

Orchids are red, daisies are blue. I'm colorblind, but I still love you!
Love, Keith

To Keith:

You are so sweet you make sugar look sour!
Marci

To the girl in the black Omni who parked up in the Orchard at 10 a.m. Friday:

Happy Valentine's Day!
From Paul, the guy in the brown Chevette

To Becky:

Hi. I like the way you are,
so stay that way: Beautiful.
Your bud, Randy

To Jenn:

Happy V-Day. Erp!
Dave

To Anjanette:

Is it working?
Mary Ann

To Markis:

Happy Valentine's Day!
You're a great pal.
Love ya, S.

To Paul Kylo:

May your days always be filled with laughter. Thanks for being you.
Happy Valentine's Day,
CRMV

To R.S.T.

I know it's crazy, but I really do love you!
Always, KC

To Patricia Gackle:

You are a very sweet person.
Happy Valentine's Day.
John Young

To all the girls we've loved before:

Happy Valentine's Day
Love, Willie and Julio

Nuestra Querida Profesora
Holley:

Esperamos que tenga buen
dia de San Valentin!
Cainos, Sus Estudiantes

To Julie:

Happy Valentine's Day
from all of us guys down at the Third!

To Rhonda Nordstrom:

Happy Valentine's Day
from all the guys.

To Paul K.:

Valentines are red. Think about it.
D. S.

To all the deserving girls at CCC:

You're all appreciated.
Happy Valentine's Day.
A student body

To Joanna and Jim:

Have a wonderful, fun
Valentine's.
From you matchmaker, Paul

To Wendy Morton and Carrie Coe:

To my two best drinking buds, I love you both!
PH

To Mary:

So, will you be my valentine?
Dave

To CE:

Happy Valentine's Day.
Thank God you made excuses!
Do you know what we're doing?
Love, Rocky

To Pete:

A valentine for Pete because you smell so sweet.
Love and kisses, Lisa

To S.S.:

Happy V-Day. Yes, no, or maybe?
Love you, T.W.