CCC to hold annual party

by Bret Hodgert
Design Editor

Associated Student Government (ASG) has chosen to honor Clackamas Community College 1987 graduates by putting on the first annual CCC "Beach Party" Friday, June 5. The party is not merely for the graduating class. Entertainment council is asking everyone, students and community, to show up.

Heather Wright, coordinator of the event had this to say, "I think 'Beach Party '87' will give students a chance to kick off their summer with the right attitude. It'll be fun for everyone, including our older students. I hope to see this event become a yearly activity for years to come."

"Beach Party '87" will take place in the courtyard located in the center of the CCC campus. Music, provided by a live D.J., will begin at 2 p.m. and continue on until 8 p.m. The barbecues will be fired up at 4:30 and will begin serving at 5 p.m.

Activities will be in abundance. Dancing, frisbee, volleyball, lim-

Devout students pray to the sun gods to grant the favor of sun on June 5. Think fun, think sun, think party!

bo competitions, and a dunk tank will all be featured at the event. Sand, a necessity for any beach party, is being imported from certain sand infested areas. Rumors have it that there will even be three palm trees.

Neale Frothingham, newly elected student body president, has volunteered to sit in the dunk tank, "I don't think any of those weeny arms will be able to get me wet. I plan on staying very dry. Besides that, everybody likes me."

Sign up for the volleyball tournament will start at 8 a.m. June 5. There must be six players on each team with at least two or more being of the opposite sex. If you want to have members of the CCC volleyball team on your squad, two is the maximum for any one team. Actual play will begin at 2 p.m.

Also to be featured will be an hourly limbo contest. Get ready to loosen up with a little bit of Limbo Rock.

Admission to "Beach Party '87" is non-existent. Dry out your hawaiian shirts and pull on the bermudas and join the rest of CCC for a day of food, fun, and sun. In the event of rain, "Beach Party '87" will be moved to the Community Center.

Renaissance faire to raise money

The Creative Arts Society is sponsoring a Renaissance Faire May 30 and 31, here on the Clackamas Community College campus.

The fair will be located in the Arts Center, Sculpture Garden and the grassy area across from baseball diamond number two.

The purpose of the Renaissance Faire, according to Janice Price, president of the Creative Arts Society, is to raise money and food for local food banks.

The Renaissance Faire will include an art show, different kinds of dancers, bag pipers, a flute player, a recorder consort arts and crafts booths, food, wood carvings and plants for sale and a costume contest for which costumes can be rented. "We're also having a tournament which is created by the society for creative anachronism," Price said.

The tournament will be held in the grassy area, where participants have to fight with heavy broadswords.

"It's the first one (Renaissance Faire) and we really want many people to show up, so we'll have canned food donated," Price explained.

Boxes around campus will be there all week so students can bring food donations.

Price pointed out that every year the Creative Arts Society brings out a springtime event, which is usually in the mall. She said the arts society decided on a Renaissance Faire this year to create something "exciting."

Oregon State University did a Renaissance Faire Mother's Day weekend, but it was on a smaller scale.

"We want to make it clear to students that the Creative Arts Society is a vital part here on campus and we're active. We really would like students to participate," Price stated.

Price concluded that she would like more students to get involved in art classes. "The art department staff are the greatest people in the whole world. They are wonderful. Art is a wonderful way to express yourself and enjoy something."

Survey prompts change

Moving the smoking areas in the CC Mall from the cafeteria to the Skylite room and eliminating smoking in the fireside lounge could be the result of a recent smoking survey.

Based on the survey, several committees, such as the Mall Use, Alcohol and Other Drug Compliance and the President's Council, have suggested the smoking area changes and other proposals.

These proposals are based upon information and data that was formulated from a smoking survey that was given to a random sample of students selected by computer, a selection of staff and faculty that represents approximately 50% of their respective sections.

Out of the 456 respondents to the smoking survey 18.4% (82) were smokers while 81.6% (361) were non-smokers. Most of the respondents were over 30.

The first section of the draft restricts smoking areas to well ventilated, low traffic areas. This leaves only four areas where smoking would be permitted. The CC Mall would have only one such area and that would be the Skylite room off of the main cafeteria. Every effort would be maintained to keep the Skylite room open at all times. Though if it is needed for "special events," smokers would be asked to smoke outside the building.

Other smoking areas would be the lower lobby next to the mural in Barlow Hall, the lobby of the gymnasium in Randall Hall, and the theatre lobby in McLoughlin. All other buildings would not allow smoking.

Section two addresses the concern of faculty and staff smoking in their own offices. They would be encouraged to check with their office partner(s), students, colleagues and guests prior to smoking during scheduled office hours.

In the third section college vehicles would be non-smoking areas even in the case of all passengers being smokers.

The fourth section covers the enforcement of such proposals. Public Safety would be asked to pay particular attention to smoking regulations the first two weeks of each term actively reminding students and staff of the smoking regulations. Also permanent signs need to be posted designating smoking areas.

Under section four "peer pressure" would also be utilized to help enforce the regulations. This would be done by creating flyers/pamphlets indicating smoking areas and giving helpful hints on how to tactfully inform individuals as to the regulations.

Business cards might also be made available to individuals to distribute that may have difficulty expressing their need for someone to abide by the smoking regulations.

Other suggestions have been the elimination of smoking from all buildings and the elimination of tobacco sales on campus. Though according to Debbie Baker, some students believe that this would be taking away their right of choice.

The draft is to be submitted to the President's Council. There it is to be discussed and any final changes will be made before it is finalized.

NEWS BRIEFS

Cholesterol screening

A cholesterol screening will be available for Clackamas Community College students and staff Wednesday, June 3 in the Community Center from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The cholesterol screening is in cooperation with Willamette Falls Hospital. The cost will be $5, which is their fee for processing the tests.

Sowa sworn in

Larry Sowa was sworn in Wednesday at the Board of Education meeting for the Zone 4 position, which will be vacated by Jim Johnson. Sowa is the District 26 State Representative and has served on the college budget committee. He is a veterinarian and owner of the McLoughlin Animal Clinic in Jennings Lodge. Sowa won the March mail-in election over Oregon City Police Chief Dick Martin and insurance agent Cathy Miller.
