Back in the Environmental Learning Center, nestled in the greenery, is the Art Center. This is where some Clackamas Community College students learn to "express themselves through their art." In the interest of sharing their art with the rest of the campus, the art students are holding a students art exhibit in the Pauling Gallery. The show will run through June 3.

Thoughts on art from some of the students in the exhibit:

Cindy Peterson

"I've been an artist all my life. I've been studying here for the last two years. I love ceramics and sculpting. Sculpting has so many mediums, you can use anything... anything, to sculpt. It's interesting to hear how people interpret my sculpture. One piece I did, everyone interpreted it differently. It's also very flattering when someone likes your art enough to buy it."

Janice Price

"What made me decide to be an artist? It's just what I've always wanted to do and finally in my mid-life crisis that's what I decided to do and I'm doing it. I will be transferring to Marylhurst to get my degree in Art Therapy. Art Therapy is for people who can't relate in words what has happened, but through art you can see what the problem is. I want to work in the prison system."

Beverly Prettyman

"I did not decide to be an artist; it was not a conscious decision. I like being able to express myself through art. Painting is my favorite. I like sculpture too. I'm mainly interested in figures.

I just want to add that the instructors are just terrific (in the art center). They are very supportive."
