Curran's Corner

Taking a look at sports 10 years ago

For about three months now, I've been writing this column on current events in sports, personal experiences, and things in general.

This week I would like to try something different.

Let's just pretend that I'm writing to you 10 years ago.

At this time of the year the Portland Trailblazers were shocking the professional basketball world when they beat the Los Angeles Lakers four games to none in the Western Conference Championship and advanced to the National Basketball Association Championship. After the first two games, Portland's opponent in the series, the Philadelphia 76ers had a two game lead on the Blazers.

Games three and four didn't go Philadelphia's way. Portland evened the series at two games apiece. In the fifth game at Philadelphia, Portland came away with the victory. All the Blazers needed was one more win to become world champions. That opportunity came on June 5, 1977. In front of a crowd of over 12,700 people in the rose city, Portland trimmed Philadelphia 109-107 to capture the only NBA championship in their history to date.

In other sports the Oakland Raiders sprinted past the Minnesota Vikings 33-14 to win their first National Football League Championship in two tries. In October of 1976 the Cincinnati Reds thrashed the New York Yankees four games to none to win their second consecutive world series.

Championship teams were not the only things happening in 1976-77. Professional sports introduced no fewer than four teams in that year. In time for the 1976 NFL season, Seattle and Tampa joined the league with the Seahawks and Buccaneers respectively.

Seattle got a new team in professional baseball as well. Along with the Toronto Blue Jays, the Mariners of Seattle were presented to baseball fans.

I hope you've enjoyed my little fade back to the past, I've had fun going back myself...but I wouldn't want to stay there.

Next week: A look back over this entire school year from a sports editor's point of view.
