

Linda Vogt, after one year of advising The Print.

Though we realize that the mental problems created by this job are irreversible, we on "The Print" staff would like to thank Linda Vogt for actually putting up with us the whole year.

Marching band to hit the big time

The "One More Time Around" marching band will be participating in this year's Rose Festival Parade for the first time. Consisting of college and high school band member alumni, the OMTA is the second largest marching band in the nation.

The Portland Rose Festival Association and 7-11 started the band three years ago. Miller Brewing Co. has bought out 7-11 and will be sponsoring the marchers for the next three years.

Originally, OMTA marched only in the Starlight Parade, but this year they will also be marching in the Rose Festival Parade. The band has earned the position of leading the Queen's Float.

"One More Time Around" has been exempt from marching in the Rose Parade in the past because it didn't have professional uniforms. Miller Brewing Co. has solved this problem by providing the entire 325 member band with new marching togs.

OMTA is looking for members to march next year. If you played an instrument or marched in either high school or college and are interested in joining, contact the Portland Rose Festival Association.

Blunders rate best

Making a class interesting the students is something many professors concentrate on. The students want to go to class they may actually learn more and maybe even earn better grades. Cracking little jokes relating personal anecdotes and two of the more popular methods. Anything to make students laugh.

Then there are those special few that don't even have to try. These special few probably couldn't tell a joke to save their lives. It's the verbal blunders that pop out of their mouths when they least expect it that make these instructors unique. They will often prove to be quite entertaining for the students.

To give you an example of what we are talking about, I have taken a few quotes from some of the campus' better known quotables, Mr. Wayne Wright, physical science instructor.

"Have you ever poured water over a sand castle and watched it spread out around the bottom?"

After a diamond was found from a rock sample kit, "The only reason we had one was to see if people we had a dample." (dample for diamond sample)

While trying to explain something to one of the campus blind students "You practice have to have eyes to see it."

"Don't quote me on the number of sand grains."

"If a camel put his head in a tent, his eyes would be out of the sand."
