This, the year of the "New Print," has been one filled with hours of writing, re-writing, editing, shooting, developing, printing, cropping, dummyming and paste-up. The result? A total of 25 editions (counting this one) for a grand total of over 200 pages of newsprint. That's enough for a novel!

The year has not been without frustrations. "The computer broke down again; I think the trailer got struck by lightning over the weekend."

"What do you mean, the Com-pugraphic isn't working? We can't put out a paper?" "You're kidding; someone actually moved the waxer while the wax was hot, and it melted all over the internal mechanism?" Ah, well....life is full of challenges.

The people you see pictured on these pages are the ones who met those challenges, and who spent endless hours tracking stories, typing away in Trailer B and generally devoting their entire college careers to the publication of this newspaper. They're a committed and hard working bunch!

And you - the readers - have given us the satisfaction of reading our paper, offering feedback now and then and at least making us feel our efforts were worthwhile. Thus we dedicate this - our Grand Final Edition - to you.

And to the staff of The Print....I offer my own congratulations for a successful year. I'm proud of each one of you.

- Linda Vogt, Adviser, The Print
