Camping with Cybill and Claude

by Bret Hodgert

"It's halfway through summer vacation and I'm already bored. What am I going to do this weekend?"

"Why don't you go camping?"
"You're kidding, right? Why would I want to spend a weekend exposing myself to cold mornings, carnivorous bugs, and lumpy ground? Masochism can be painful!"

Roughing it does not necessarily mean going out of your way to be miserable. Camping can be an activity that could leave you with many pleasurable memories.

There are many different degrees to camping. To most people, camping includes tents, sleeping bags and using coolers full of beer as benches next to the fire.

Cybill Shepherd co-star of "Moonlighting," takes the concept a little further. Shepherd has been reported cruising the California wilderness in a $370,000 green motor home. It seems that she has also added a few features to her travel all to make "roughing it" a little easier, including a wet bar, garbage disposal, deep freeze, electric golf cart, VCR, twin remote TVs, satellite dish, compact disc player, washer, dryer, microwave, and leather vibrating seats.

- ① Snag hill—good only if you are "hanging out" as a windsock.
- ② In the PINES—spooky. Bigfoot country. You can't run fast in the trees.
- ③ Unsteady ground, preferred by some ONLY FANS.
- ④ TOO MUCH DEADWOOD AND GRASS. A campfire could REALLY light up your life.
- ⑤ ON THE OLD LOGGING ROAD. TOO EASILY SEEN BY VEHICLES --- TOO LATE!
- ⑥ Lightning will strike tall trees in the open. (Example: SITE 6 & 7.)
- ⑦ OLD CREEK BEDS WILL "ROCK" YOU TO SLEEP.
- ⑧ STREAM SIDE SITE MAY FLOOD AND CARRY OFF YOUR MOSQUITO EATEN CARCASS.
- ⑨ MIGHT HAVE BEEN A GOOD SITE, BUT ITS JUST TOO CROWDED AROUND HERE!

How To Choose A Good CAMPSITE:

In order to make the most of camping this summer, study the examples listed and then choose the best site for your needs.

And then you have the other extreme. Nobody knows how Claude Dallas, mountain man and escaped convict, is staying alive. Or even where he is.

As college students, we need not take the extremes of Claude, nor can we afford the extravagances of Ms. Shepherd. A sleeping bag and a box of matches can solve your problem of cold mornings. A $1.50 can eradicate the insects with a can of bug spray. If it's the lumpy ground that bothers you, a thin foam pad can be very handy.

But the main key to any camping trip is friends. A few friends, a campfire, and a cooler full of fun is a perfect formula for a good time.

A trip to the woods is more than just a party though. The beauty of the Oregon wilderness is incomparable. A view of forested slopes and snow topped mountains may make an over-night hike in the woods more than worthwhile.

So, if your summer seems to be falling into a slump, take a hike! Oregon is called "the green state" for a reason. Tourists need not be the only ones to take advantage of this opportunity.

When camping remember that others will be following to enjoy the same splendors. Have the good sense to clean up any trash you have and to completely extinguish all fires.

Summer can party

School is about out and summer is almost in. Now it's REAL-LY time to party. You could party just for the sake of partying, but there is always that little ounce of satisfaction when one has a legitimate reason. A friend's birthday, wedding reception, or maybe even the Fourth of July could all be used as examples. These are all good examples, but they are all just a bit ordinary. Let me share some of this summer's more obscure reasons to celebrate.

On June 8, 1886, George Mallory disappeared into the mists on the slopes of Mt. Everest. He has been gone for 101 years. Drink a toast in his honor with the hopes that he will come back soon and tell us what it was like.

On June 17, we can celebrate National Watergate Day. Encourage all your friends to wear black and white stripes and fake Nixon noses. This is all in the memory of those famous arrests that took place at the Democratic Headquarters in 1972. To add that little extra touch to the occasion, hold your hands in the air making the victory sign while at the same time shaking your face and repeating, "I am not a crook."

If your a "Wizard of Id" fan, you'll love the week of June 22-28, it's National Fink Week. No, I did not make this up. National Fink Week was created to restore dignity to all those who have been called a fink over the year. Could it be that our illustrious president has created this holiday in his own honor?

I don't know where you are going to be on the Fourth of July, but I'm going to be in Eau Claire, Minnesota "What's in Eau Claire, Minnesota" you ask. Why, this is the location of the International Cherry Pit Spitting Contest. What could be more fun than sittin' aroun' with a buncha good ol' boys just drinkin' beer an' spittin' pits?

How about July 16, Atomic Bomb Day. This is to commemorate the explosion of the very first atomic bomb. I think this may be a perfectly legitimate reason to get...I hate to say this...blasted.

July 25 and 26 celebrate the National Holland Festival. Hollonoids from all over celebrate by dressing in Dutch costumes and competing in street scrubbing contests. It just so happens that the new editor of THE PRINT is from Holland. If you have any questions regarding this festival, I'm sure she would be more than happy to answer them. Call ex. 309, and ask for Heleen.

Last, but certainly not least, is Vesuvius Day. August 24 marks the 2066th anniversary of the Mt. Vesuvius explosion that destroyed the entire city of Pompeii. This was a great day in the history of insurance companies. So, get a bunch of friend together and have a real summers end blow out! Don't forget to turn on your lava lights.

Don't forget to attend "Beach Party '87" on Friday, June 5!
