

PHOTO ESSAY

April 6, 1988

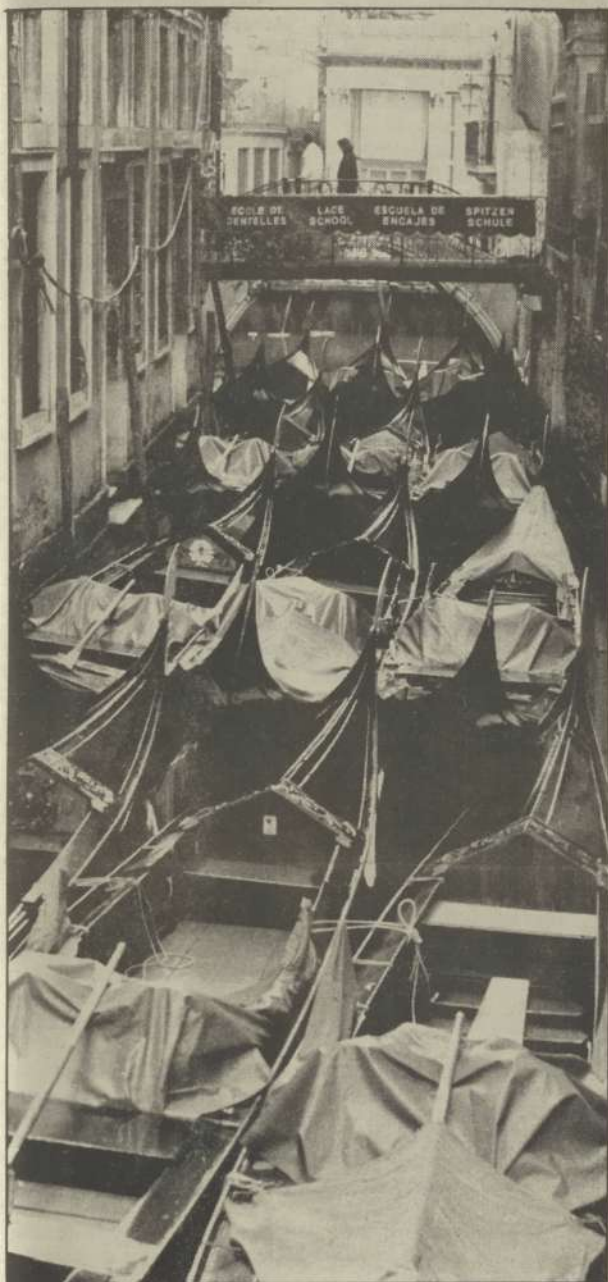

Page 5

Europe in Spring:

the world awakens

Photos by Beth Coffey

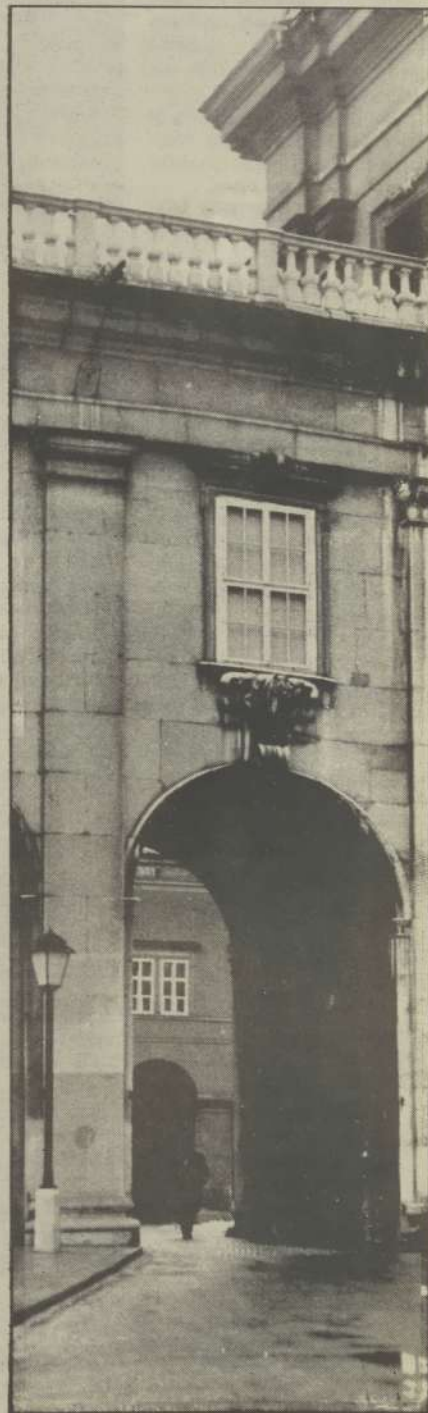

A European vacation for Heidi and me. Nine days revealed only glimpses of the old world, the living, visible history, the contrast between our culture and theirs, and the wonderful people so amused by naive, young Americans.

A Venezian salesman throws his pitch. "... for the low, low price of... includes the cost of shipping."

A bit of America everywhere.

A Bahnhof Station vender welcomes a second photograph.

