

A Day at U of O

by Beth Coffey
Photo Editor

Walking around the University of Oregon campus for a day, it seemed sad that I have no plans to enroll in a university when I leave Clackamas this spring. It's picturesque, magically attractive, and meshed with diverse groups of people. I actually began thinking maybe four more years would do me some good. No, on second thought, this education will be cherished by so many - I won't be missed.

Photos by Beth Coffey

