

Students restricted to wheelchairs need an elevator key to access upper Randall.

Handicap is just a word

Obstacles hinder Hoffman's entrance into the AV Department.

by Michael L. Walker
Co-News Editor

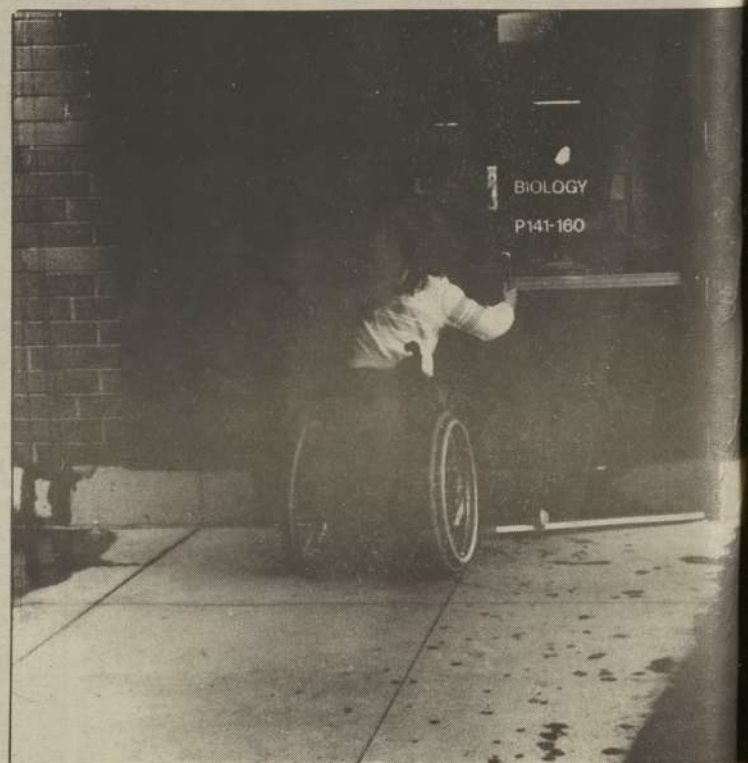

Handicap Awareness Day is Thursday, May 5. Booths from organizations like SOAR will be set up in the Community Center. The intent is to get handicapped people into sports like rafting and skiing.

"It's to make people aware of what handicaps are and the fact that everyone has some handicap and that doesn't make us any less human," said wheelchair-bound Teryl Hoffman.

Hoffman went on to explain that the college is not "wheelchair accessible" for people who have no upper body strength. There is no way for people in wheelchairs to get into Pauling Hall without help she said, and that it needs electric doors.

The day will start off with a symposium on learning disorders at 9:30 a.m. in the Bagby lecture hall.

From eleven to twelve some members of the faculty will be

In Pauling the only facilities wheelchair accessible are the bathroom. Pauling entrances are geared for walking students only.

