

THE PRINT

Vol. XXII No. 12

Wednesday, January 25, 1989

Clackamas Community College

Oregon City, Oregon

Public Safety to gain two officers

by Briane C. Dotson
News Editor

Public Safety at Clackamas Community College will acquire two new officers, according to Chief of Public Safety Stan Johnson.

A candidate for the job of Public Safety Officer must have a minimum of two years of law enforcement or public safety experience. The candidates must know the rules of both public safety and law enforcement, essentials in developing a working relationship with staff, students, and the general public.

The public safety officer must work varied shifts, and is responsible for working with other officers in controlling vehicles parking on college property and recording accident reports correctly and in as much detail as possible. Public safety officers must provide protection to students, staff, and buildings.

One of the jobs available is full-time 12 months a year, and the second job is for 80 percent of the 12 month year. Starting date on both these jobs is as soon as possible.

Salary is level G which runs from $1,278-$1,395 a month in the 1988/89 classified employee salary schedule, plus some fringe benefits.

Clackamas is an equal opportunity employer and all qualified persons will be considered for employment without regard to race, color, religious belief, sex, national origin, age or any other non-law enforcement factor, according to Johnson.

The reason for the two openings in public safety is that officers

Scott Robinson and Dinnelle Elliott are leaving. Robinson, a graduate of Clackamas Community College and current student of Portland State, has accepted a position with the Milwaukie Police Department. Elliott, who has not officially resigned as of yet, will become a member of the Tigard Police Department. Elliott is also a graduate of the College.

"It's a common college," said Johnson about the departure of both Elliott and Robinson. "They got their experience here and are now ready to move on."

Donaldson named advising specialist

Photo by Tara Powers

ROBERTA DONALDSON - New advising specialist in the counseling department.

College vying for bond levy support

by Briane C. Dotson
News Editor

The Friends of Clackamas Community College plan to contact over 32,500 voters in hopes of getting them to pass a $9.5 million bond levy in March according to Associated Student Government President Faith Taylor.

The Friends of Clackamas Community College hope to use student volunteers to help in the bid to get the bond levy passed. The bid to inform voters will take place on a Saturday according to Taylor.

"We (the students) have to get involved because the bond levy is for us," said Taylor.

Of the 62,000 registered voters in the district, it is hoped by the Friends of Clackamas Community College that they will be able to reach half the voters.

"I want to see everyone who isn't registered get registered and vote," said Taylor.

Students who are not registered to vote can register through Student Activities office, located in the Community Center.

by Briane C. Dotson
News Editor

Roberta Donaldson has been hired as an advising specialist here at Clackamas Community College.

As an advising specialist, Donaldson is a para-professional and provides accurate and specific information to persons on routine matters in relation to the advising process. Donaldson also will help in registration, scheduling, and giving information on available careers, educational, and vocational options.

"The job as an advising specialist is not to be confused with a counselor," stressed Donaldson.

Donaldson has worked in the administration office at Clackamas for four years. She began in administration, but also held positions in the nursing, community education, and adult high school diploma programs. Donaldson acted as an evaluation specialist before being hired for the advising position.

"It's a good transition from the registrar's office," said Donaldson about her new job.

"I like the student contact. I did the same things before, only it was on paper," noted Donaldson. "I enjoy seeing students fresh out of high school, whereas I dealt with students who were getting ready to graduate."

Donaldson has a Bachelor of Science in Education from Eastern Oregon State College in LaGrande.

"It's one of the best teachers' colleges in the state," Donaldson contends.

Donaldson is originally from Baker, Oregon, and has taught at the elementary level in California and Oregon.

Donaldson has been married to Jim Donaldson for 25 years. They have two teenagers: Eric, who is currently going to Portland State University, and Laura, who is a junior at Oregon City High School.

Forum on smoking considered by ASG

by Christopher L. Curran
Editor

Smoking has become a very heated and argumentative topic this year at Clackamas Community College.

In the President's Council Meeting of Dec. 6, the council decided to ban the activity in the Lobby of Randall Hall right in front of the gym. In that same meeting the council planned a 30 day period, to be held during the month of April, where smoking would be banned all across campus.

Currently talk has arisen between College President John Keyser and Associated Student Government President Faith Taylor on the subject of a smoking forum where those in favor of smoking and those against smoking could air their opinions on the subject. At this time Taylor and four other members of the Clackamas Associated Student Government are investigating the possibility of such a project.

"I have to take the idea to the ASG meeting Thursday and it (a smoking forum) has to be approved," said ASG President Taylor. "It is a chance for both sides to speak their views."

The committee held a meeting Tuesday morning and decided on several items to present at Thursday's meeting for approval.

If the forum is approved, then faculty, students and administration would be invited to speak their views on the topic of smoking. The meeting would be tentatively scheduled for the middle of February.

"We really want people who are for it (smoking), as well as people who are against it," said Taylor. "There would be a debate for both sides and then it would go to the floor for discussion. Everybody will have a chance to be heard."

News Digest

Schroder to give lecture

Tickets are now on sale for a public lecture by Patricia Schroder, Congresswoman from Colorado. She will speak on Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. at Shumway Middle School, 3101 Main Street, Vancouver.

A Harvard graduate and former Mother of the Year, Schroder has been cited as one of the 100 most influential women in America. She will share her insights on contemporary politics and the changes women will inspire through their involvement.

CCC hosts gathering

An 80's Issues Breakfast is scheduled for Wednesday Feb. 8. "My Parents Had Such High Hopes" will be presented by Barbara Roberts, Oregon Secretary of State.

Seating is limited, so register now for WKS 1-2, 7:30-9 a.m. in the CC Skylight Room. $4.50 includes breakfast. Roberts will share the story of her transition from wife and mom to one of the most influential women in the Oregon state government.

Year's first Ski Ball set for Monday

If you've been waiting to hit the slopes, here's your chance. Ski Ball #1 will be Monday Jan. 30 from 4 to 10 p.m. at Mt. Hood Meadows. Forms are available at the Student Activities office and you can buy tickets from the CCC Cashier. The prices are $7 for a lift ticket and $5 for transportation. Hurry! The last day to get tickets is this Friday Jan. 27.

