Pow Wow plans finalized

Free workshop

Free workshop on using low cost beef for the holidays is being offered at Clackamas Community College Thursday, October 19, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Linda Baker, home economist for the Beef Council, will conduct the Beefia workshop in the college's Community room 117. Information about the workshop is available from the college's home economics department, 656-2631, ext. 350.

Sports activities narrowly defeated bands or concerts and dances as last year's most enjoyed activities.

On the question of type of music favored for dancing, Rock and Roll outdistanced the other choices by a wide margin. Country Rock and Disco music placed second and third respectively.

New and old comedy movies were the top choices in the film category while volleyball and tennis tied for the most popular intramural sport.

Under the cultural and special event category, music was rated number one with art placing second.

Classifieds strike

Clackamas Community College's classified staff took a strike vote Tuesday, October 5 which passed unanimously.

The decision to take a strike vote came after management turned down classifieds' proposal of a 6 percent cost of living increase, a 5 percent increment increase and a 1.3 percent increase in insurance. Management's last offer was a 4 percent cost of living increase, a 2.3 percent increment increase and a 1.3 percent increase in insurance.

Negotiations will now go into fact finding. The fact finding hearing is set for October 19.

No. 9 supported

All 15 Oregon Community College student government presidents came out in support of Ballot Measure No. 9, the nuclear safeguards initiative, during a Board of Presidents meeting of the Community Colleges of Oregon Student Activities Council held last Saturday at Clackamas Community College.

Backpacking film

Backpacking the Pacific Crest Trail from Mexico to Canada will be reviewed in a slide presentation to be shown at Clackamas Community College Thursday, Oct. 21 at noon.

Scott Shuey will show slides of his four and one half month trip along the Pacific Crest Trail and talk about backpacking, hiking and equipment.

The program will be in the college's Community Center room 117.

Oldsters day

An activities day for retired citizens is being held Sunday, Oct. 17 beginning at 2 p.m.

Horseshoe pitching, volleyball, table tennis, cards and pool are some of the scheduled activities. There will be a dance from 5 to 7 p.m.

Persons from throughout Clackamas County are invited to attend this free event.

Enrollment down

The growth rate of student enrollment at Clackamas Community College has leveled off this year after an average growth of 8% per year, said Chuck Adams, director of administration and records at CCC.

As of last Thursday there are 3500 students registered this term at CCC. This is more full-time students and a few part-time students than last year. CCC, however, isn't the only community college reaching a plateau in its growth. The statewide community college enrollment is down 7% as of summer term. The main reasons that enrollment is leveling out are cited by Adams as being a continuously improving job market and the loss of benefits by many veterans who would normally be attending school.

Slides presented

A five-week series on home repairs for seniors is being held at Clackamas Community College Tuesdays at 7 p.m. "The Lady Does Repairs" is a free program being taught by Dave Fenstermaker of the college's maintenance staff. Information about the program is available from the college's home economics department, 656-2631, ext. 350.

Food co-op

The Oregon City Food Co-op opened its doors for business yesterday. The co-op, located at 106 Molalla Ave., is a non-profit organization and offers high quality nutritional food at a low price to community members. For information on becoming a member of the co-op call 657-0071.

Bowling dates set

Students at Clackamas Community College can now receive discount prices at City Bowl in Oregon City.

Students with student body cards can get 55 cents a game during these open bowling hours:

Mondays from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m.; Tuesdays, 3 to 6:30 p.m.; Wednesday, 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 3:30 to 6:30 p.m.; Thursday from 2:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.; Friday, noon to 6:30 p.m.; Saturday, 3:30 to 7 p.m.; Sunday, 9 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. after 7 p.m.

ASG results

During fall term registration the Associated Student Government was passing out a questionnaire on student body preference activities.

Clackamas Community College

Autumn, with leaves changing color and crisp, invigorating days, makes the college campus ideal for a gathering. This gathering, though, is one with a difference. It's an Indian Pow Wow.

The Pow Wow, which is being sponsored by the Associated Student Government and Ouy Ka' Lah (an Indian culture club) and the Student Activities office, will be held in Randall Hall, October 22, 23, and 24.

News of the Pow Wow has spread. People are expected to come from Portland, Warm Springs, Seattle, Canada, Montana, Oklahoma and South Dakota. A camping area will be made available to those that need it. There may even be a few teepees scattered among the campers and pickups.

Entertainment will be the dancing and drum contests. The drum competition is quite different than what might be expected. It isn't one guy battering away on a snare drum and cymbals.

It will be eight people gathered around a large drum, each with a drumstick, pounding out a complicated rhythm and singing.

Those participating in the Dance competitions, from tots to adults, will be decked out in their finest outfits. There will be $1,200 in prizes given away.

Besides the contests there will be booths selling Indian crafts like turquoise jewelry, beadwork, shawls, and ribbon shirts, which are, as the name implies, shirts with ribbons sewn on them. There will also be food booths which will sell things like fried bread, venison stew, and chili.

Artifacts such as medicine pouches, pipes and horse gear will be shown by Shirley McDaniel and her daughter, Perri McDaniel, Miss Indian Northwest.

A raffle will be held on the last day of the Pow Wow for an $80 Indian blanket, Indian jewelry, and other items. Tickets are 50¢ each or three for $1.00. You don't have to be present to win.

All proceeds will go to a scholarship fund set up by Clackamas Community College's Ouy Ka' Lah Club.
