Port places

Clackamas Community College's "Ten Year Report" has been awarded Second in the 1976 School and College Publications Contest sponsored by "Nation's Schools Report".

The report included praise from President Hakanson, general manager of the Clackamas community, the low cost of attending the college and education innovations.

Writing excellence combined with photography, layout, and design were the criteria in selecting the 12 first place, 56 second and 238 third place winners.

CCC's entry was edited by Bill Shreve, public information officer and designed by graphic artist Dave Thompson of Inter/Design.

Christmas bazaar

A Christmas Bazaar, featuring various arts and crafts products, will be held Saturday, Nov. 20 from 10-5 and Sunday Nov. 21 from 11-5 in the Randall Hall gym.

The cost to craftsmen for two days is $10 without a table and $20 with a table. Rental fees will help support the Clackamas Community College Foundation Scholarship Program.

Space is still available and advanced booth reservation is advised. For more information call 656-2631 ext. 232.

Enrollment warning

Students who are enrolled in classes at Clackamas Community College but do not attend class regularly should be aware of the implications of their behavior, said Art Hames, Counseling Department.

Students with a poor class attendance record may be flunked, given a grade of "W" deleted altogether from the class roster. Veterans or students receiving financial aid, such grades can cause them to fall below the satisfactory progress or 12-credit requirements for benefits, loans or aid.

This may mean veterans will have to pay back benefits received and they may lose their option to benefits. Students with financial aid may lose future loans or aid, said Hames.

Hames encouraged students with poor attendance records to get in touch with their instructors or to see a counselor to determine the most appropriate adjustments that can be made.

Bigfoot lecture due

Peter Byrne, author of "The Search for Bigfoot", will lecture Thursday, Nov. 18, at Clackamas Community College's Community Center Mall at 8 p.m. on Bigfoot and the Loch Ness monster.

The public is invited and there will be no charge.

ASG backs Nelson

The Associated Student Government in last week's meeting voted unanimously to support Bonnie Nelson in her quest for adequate access facilities to the upstairs of the art building.

Nelson is confined to a wheelchair and has not been able to attend two of her classes. She suggested installation of a stair elevator lift which would cost an estimated $1500 to $2000.

Jerry Bellavita, assistant to the president, pointed out that it is the institution's responsibility to provide equal access for handicapped people. He later asked for and received unanimous support for Nelson.

In other action three clubs were accepted to the CCC campus. The NORML, FCA and bowling clubs were all voted in while the rifle and pistol club must wait for the next ASG meeting for a vote of approval.

The Focus on Women program also received support from ASG at last Thursday's meeting. The council voted to fund 50% of two upcoming special events slated by Focus on Women.

Charlie Bennett, Vice President, gave a report on placing color television sets around campus to broadcast campus, local and national news.

Camera shy? So is the Great Blue Heron which has been seen frequenting the Ecology Pond at regular intervals once a day to fish from the back side of the pond.

Several attempts have been made to catch a picture of the bird while on the bank fishing, but every time a photographer gets near, the Heron jumps back into the brush where he can't be seen.
