

Shakespearean duo hold workshop

Wednesday, Nov. 17, Rex Rabold and Kremer, two actors from the Oregon Shakespearean Festival Association will be empus to give four presentations.

The first presentation, 'Words, Words, s', will be presented at 10 a.m. in the McLoughlin theatre. It will attempt to make the language of Shakespeare more understandable and center on the power of poetry to move an audience.

At 11 a.m. they will present 'It's All In the Family' in the McLoughlin theatre. This will consist of scenes from the plays 'The Merchant of Venice', 'Angel Street', 'A Taste of Honey' and 'Measure For Measure'.

The purpose will be to explore the relationships between brother-sister, father-son, husband-wife and friend-friend, from the viewpoint of playwrights and twentieth century playgoers.

At 12 p.m. there will be a fifty minute production of 'See What They Say About Shakespeare'. This will be held in the Community Center Mall and is purely for entertainment.

At 3 p.m. in the McLoughlin theatre the two OSFA members will present 'If the Moccasin Fits, Wear It!' Since drama teaches a person to understand another person's point of view, this session is recommended for any class group. It will deal with students in the craft of imagining and then becoming someone else.
