Classified advertising offered by Cougar Print winter term

Clackamas Community College Publications Staff will be offering the college community an added service winter term via the Cougar Print -- classified advertising.

This form of advertising unique to the print media will be a bargain for students, faculty and staff at CCC. The rate -- $1 for the first 15 words and 10 cents per word thereafter -- is much lower than rates charged on conventional newspapers and most other college newspapers in the state.

"The Cougar Print conceivably reaches 8,000 persons each week including full-time and part-time students, faculty and staff," said Randy Clark, student publications adviser. "This means a classified ad has the possibility of reaching that many potential buyers and this increases the possibility of results for the advertiser."

Advertising will be accepted in such categories as For Sale, For Rent, Free, Rides Wanted, Help Wanted, Bicycles, Recreation, Personals, and others, as the need arises.

"The biggest selling category for the Daily Emerald in Eugene (the student newspaper at the University of Oregon) is the Personals," said Clark. "The Emerald often has up to three full pages of classified ads each day and sometimes the Personals compose a whole page. People are always wanting to send personal messages to people they know on campus or to boyfriends or girlfriends."

The addition of classified advertising for the Cougar Print is part of a general "beefing up" of the business end of the newspaper this year, said Clark.

"We hope to include business majors in the total production of the Cougar Print," she said. "It's good experience and they can go on to any four-year college and get a job selling advertising on the student newspapers."

The Cougar Print has already realized a 300 percent increase in revenue from an increased display advertising program this term.

Classified ads in the Cougar Print will begin with the first issue of winter term which will be published Jan. 6. Ads must be paid for in advance and may be submitted at the Student Health and Publications Center in Trailer A. Deadline for classified advertising will be Friday at 4 p.m. preceding the next week's publication.

The end of the term is drawing near and it comes final examinations. The last week of each term is traditionally set aside for class exams and a special schedule is provided for that week.

For this term's finals week, Dec. 13 through 17, all classes whose first meeting of the week is on Monday, Wednesday or Friday will have the final examination as indicated by the class and "M" in the following schedule chart.

All classes whose first meeting is on Tuesday or Thursday will have the final examination as indicated by the class and "T".

All English Composition, Mathematics, Biology (AT), Health and History classes will have the final exam at the time slot indicated on the schedule.

Examinations will be held in the regular classrooms unless otherwise assigned by the instructor.

The evening credit classes will follow this schedule:

Classes which meet 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., 7 to 9:30 p.m. will have their final examination from 7 to 9 p.m. during the first class meeting on Monday or Tuesday finals week.

Classes which meet 8:30 to 10 p.m. will have their final examination from 7 to 9 p.m. during the second class meeting on Wednesday or Thursday of finals week.

Classes which meet 7 to 10 p.m. will have their final from 7 to 9 p.m. on their regular class night during finals week.

Student leaders

discuss lobbying

at Salem confab

A Community College of Oregon Student Association and Commissions (CCOSAC) conference was held the weekend of Nov. 19, at Chemeketa Community College in Salem.

The main item on the conference agenda is the formation of a student lobbying group to represent community college students during sessions of the state Senate and House of Representatives.

On the last day of the conference a board of Presidents meeting was held and a list of student concerns was put together. These concerns included child care, a veterans bill of rights, and stabilization of tuition.

Another possible lobbying venture concerns the adoption of a student/consumer bill of rights. This would be a legislative definition of the rights of students to become a factor in determining what they get for their money in the way of services from the college and could incorporate collective bargaining and student evaluation of college personnel.

Two or three of the listed concerns will be picked as a starting point for the lobbying group during the next CCOSAC conference which will be held Dec. 11 at Linn Benton Community College.
