Dance, festivities attract crowd

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) hosted a dance Dec. 13, 1976 in the Clackamas Community College mall which attracted approximately 200 persons.

The program was offered to families, senior adults and RSVP volunteers.

The dance followed a holiday festivities program which was sponsored by the Humanities and Social Sciences Division. The program consisted of a baroque concert in which students participated, a Christmas caroling program and a talk about traditional Christmas tree lighting. A Santa Claus was also present to pass out candy canes to the children who attended the program.

The RSVP dance began at 8 p.m. with music provided by Fred Davis, an organist from Estacada.

Judy Smith, RSVP Director, said entertainment was also provided by the Notorious Four, a barbershop quartet from Canby. A drawing was also held during the evening.

Randy Nims, Barbara Dikty and their dates dance to Brothers & Friends, sponsored by the Clackamas Community College chapter of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) Thursday, Dec. 16 in the CCC mall. Donations were collected to help the organization's finances.

Faculty exhibit art wares in current campus showing

An art show featuring Clackamas Community College faculty members is currently underway in the Community Center Mall. This annual exhibit began Monday and will continue through Jan. 14.

Faculty members showing their wares include Norm Bursheim, felt tip drawings and designs; Leland John, oil paintings; Les Tipton, jewelry and sculpture; and Nancy Travers, pottery.

Future campus exhibits this term may include student exhibits as well as faculty/student exhibits, according to Bursheim, head of the CCC art department.

"High school art departments are really doing a fantastic job," Bursheim said. "It's
