

Workshop set for child care funding

A meeting to discuss supplementing existing child care financial aid programs for parents attending post-secondary institutions will be held today at Clackamas Community College.

Legislation, in the form of House Bill 459, will apply to parents attending any Oregon public community college or institution within the Department of Higher Education whose children are enrolled in any day-care center or family day-care home certified by the Children's Services Division (CSD).

Essentially this bill is intended to provide financial aid to remove economic barriers which prevent parents from attending post-secondary school. It would require CSD to make payments directly to a day-care center for services and supplement existing financial aid programs for parents.

"This program is designed to supplement, not replace existing financial aid programs for parents. Current CSD programs provide aid to some undergraduate students, but generally exclude graduate students, freshmen and sophomores in four year schools and community college students enrolled in academic transfer programs," said Ken Roberts, Associated Student Government senator involved in lobbying for this legislation.

This bill would also allow CSD to delegate certain administrative responsibilities to participating schools and would establish a means of distributing the total appropriation on an equitable basis to participating schools. The level of appropriation is $3.65 million for the next biennium, said Roberts.

The meeting will be held at noon in the Fireside Lounge to discuss ways to establish demonstrated needs for these child care services. All student parents are invited to attend.

Finals schedule released

The end of winter term is closer than many of us realize and with the end comes finals. Now is the time to start planning ahead so they don't take you by surprise.

Finals week is March 14 through 17 and all classes whose first meeting of the week is on Monday, Wednesday or Friday will have the final examination as indicated by the class and "M" in the following schedule chart.

All classes whose first meeting is Tuesday or Thursday will have the final examination as indicated by the class time and "T".

All English Composition, Mathematics, Biology (AT), Health and History classes will have the final exam at the time slot indicated on the schedule.

Examinations will be held in the regular classrooms unless otherwise assigned by the instructor.

The evening credit classes will follow this schedule:

Classes which meet 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., 7 to 8:30 p.m. and 7 to 9:30 p.m. will have their final examination from 7 to 9 p.m. during the first class meeting on Monday or Tuesday during final exam week.

Classes which meet 8:30 to 10 p.m. will have their final from 7 to 9 p.m. during the second class meeting on Wednesday or Thursday during final exam week.

Classes which meet 7 to 10 p.m. will have their final from 7 to 9 on regular class night during finals week.

ASG revises constitution

Last week a constitutional revision for the Associated Student Government Senate was introduced by a constitutional revision committee. The revision will be effective spring term.

According to the revision, all ASG officials have to be enrolled as students on campus and maintain a grade point average of 2.0 which is passing. Officials must take a minimum of six credits (full-time GED students are considered to be carrying 12 credits) or be enrolled in at least two community education classes.

Another change is that the number of ASG senators will be set at 20. When the number of senators falls below 17, an election will be held by the ASG senate at their next regular meeting to fill the prescribed quota of 20.

ASG's publicity director, Marty Simroth, resigned at last week's meeting and Senator Linda Pointer was approved to fill that vacancy.

Today's ASG meeting in the Fireside Lounge will see the appointment of three or four new senators and a nonsmoking policy will be voted upon.

If passed by the senate and approved by the administration, a section of the cafeteria - perhaps the intimate dining room, will be designated for nonsmokers.

Art presentation

Leland John will make an art presentation this Monday in conjunction with Mayo Roy's Philosophy of Aesthetics (Phil 204) class. John, art instructor at Clackamas Community College, will discuss and show slides of his works. The presentation will begin at noon in B-151.

The following Thursday Norm Bursheim, also an art instructor at CCC, will make a similar presentation with his works at the same time and location.

Both presentations are open to the community.
