Skill olympics

More than 200 high school students from throughout Oregon will compete Friday and Saturday, April 15 and 16, at Clackamas Community College in the fifth Statewide Vocational Industrial Clubs of America Skill Olympics.

The Skill Olympics feature competition in a wide variety of technical skills, including auto mechanics, bricklaying, carpentry, radio and television repair, sheet metal work and welding. Students are judged by members of business and industry on assigned tasks and are graded on written tests to determine the winners.

Students qualify for the statewide competition by high school, area and regional judging. The winners of the statewide competition will then qualify for the National Skill Olympics.

Gib Bloomquist, agricultural and industrial division chairman at CCC, is organizing the event along with George Warren of the State Department of Education. Larry Noonan, automotive department chairman, is directing the job skills contests.

Auto repair bill

Oregon consumers are being asked to contact their legislators and urge their support of a bill to provide consumers some protection in the area of auto repair.

House Bill 2085 has been introduced into the 1977 Legislature to provide three sanctions for the public: the right to replaced parts, a completed work order and a choice of estimates.

The bill will be heard before the House Business and Consumer Affairs Committee, whose members are Representatives Grannell (Chairperson), Fawbush, Achilles, Kerans, Klein, Markham, Morris, Shaw and Vian.

Similar legislation was proposed in 1973 and 1975 but was unsuccessful. Part of the failure has been attributed to lack of public response.

Auto mishap

Richard Edmund Nash, 20, a student at Clackamas Community College suffered serious head injuries Tuesday, Feb. 22, when the Volkswagen he was driving was struck in the left side by a Chevrolet pickup.

According to police sources, Nash apparently pulled off the access road near Smuckers onto Beavercreek Road without stopping to check for oncoming traffic, and was hit by the pickup.

Nash was pinned in his car and had to be extracted by firemen from District 54, who shortly arrived on the scene. He was taken to Willamette Falls Hospital for emergency treatment, and was then transferred to the University of Oregon Health Sciences Center intensive care unit where he is reported in serious condition.

Neither the driver of the pickup, Edwin Dee Heilman, or his passenger, John Gregory Scott, were injured.

Gardening section

With spring just around the corner, many persons are beginning to have visions of compost piles, rich, red earth, tiny seeds, lack of water and their favorite garden-fresh salad.

Next week the Cougar Print will offer another special section for the enjoyment and interest of the college community.

Happie Thacker, Cougar Print copy editor, is editing a gardening section for "green thumbs" with help from staff reporters and photographers. Paul Byers, advertising salesperson, is handling advertising sales to merchants with a special interest in gardening and Clackamas Community College.

Transition group

The Clackamas County Mental Health Program is planning a transition group for newly single women as part of its community service program.

The group is open to women up to the age of 55 who are undergoing stress due to separation, divorce or death.

According to Clackamas Community College counselor Bernie Nolan this is not a therapy group but an opportunity for support, growth and self expression for newly single women.

The series starts March 17 and is held from 6:30 p.m. to 8 in the Education Building on the Marylhurst campus.

For more information contact Art at 655-8401.

New senators

Three new senators were voted into the Associated Student Government during meeting last Thursday.

Three people were nominated to fill three vacancies and a motion was passed to accept the nominees. The motion was approved by a 2/3 vote. The new senators are Kevin Conrad, Holland and Marcia Tuma.

ASG also approved a revision to the constitution that will allow ASG to make exceptions to a newly adopted requirement for senators. This requirement states that all members of ASG take a minimum of six credit hours per term.

The revision to this requirement allows exceptions to be made concerning campus student senators with a 2/3 majority approval of ASG of Clackamas Community College if a candidate has exceptional qualifications as determined by ASG of CCC.

Art presentation

This Monday, March 7, Norm Bursheim will give a presentation of his works at 10:00 a.m. in B-151. Bursheim, art instructor at Clackamas Community College, will make the presentation in conjunction with Major Professor Philosophy of Aesthetics (Phil 204).
