

New class looking beyond sex roles

"We first were planning for a male consciousness-raising class. I quickly realized, to avoid further sexual polarity, that we should consider the human person, male and female, beyond sex roles of any kind." These comments came from Vince Fitzgerald, counselor at Clackamas Community College and co-instructor of a new sociology class to be taught this spring.

"Our Tuesday evening course, SOC 199 Beyond Sex Roles, will challenge persons enrolled to become aware of their male and female roles, and get beneath them, or within them, to possibly arrive at what we might call 'basic humanness'," said Fitzgerald.

The sociology course, taught by Fitzgerald and Donna Grund-Slepack, will reflect both the cognitive and experimental approaches to sex role stereotyping in social institutions. Emphasis will be placed on education, the family, religion, politics, economics, and their impact on personal development.

Both instructors have distinct approaches to the course. Grund-Slepack completed her doctorate a year ago, with her dissertation on Women in the German Democratic Republic (East Germany).

Her teaching background includes German, art, and child development. Grund-Slepack travels extensively and frequently. She is currently on the Steering Committee for "Focus on Women" here at CCC.

Fitzgerald, counselor and foreign student advisor at CCC, does much personal and group counseling and has taught Psychology of Human Relations here for the last five years. In the previous 12 years, Fitzgerald taught Spanish at the college and high school levels.

The class will be held from 7-10 p.m. on Tuesday nights.

A 1977 Toyota Corolla 1600 engine, transmission, radiator, differential, steering gear and some other small components shown here were donated to the CCC Automotive Department last Tuesday by Toyota Motors Distributor Inc. and Irv Leopold Imports.

Bookstore remains open through spring vacation

Spring vacation is almost here, but for some people there will be no spring vacation. The CCC Bookstore for example will work through the spring break in an effort to make the load lighter for returning students.

Winter term book buy back will keep the CCC Bookstore busy from Monday, March 14 through Friday, March 25. During vacation the bookstore will still remain open for students wishing to purchase books and supplies.

Vacation hours for the bookstore will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and Spring term hours will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday for the first three weeks and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Fridays.

Students will have the opportunity to purchase required texts and supplies during the spring break, but DVR, CETA and other students attending school on government programs need to be aware that vouchers have validation dates and charges for Spring term cannot be made before that date.

Newly received supply items have arrived at the bookstore including Grumbacher canvases boards and Niji stylist pens.

New books have also arrived and among the list are Alex Haley's Roots, Tetrault's Country Women, Brownmiller's Against Our Will, Friedman's Tales Out of Oregon and A Touch of Oregon and Wambaugh's The Choirboys.

The bookstore can special order any book listed in Books in Print also. Forms and assistance are available at the bookstore and orders take from two to six weeks.

Students will also be able to purchase Cornwell Tools by special order with student discount policies. Inquire at the front desk for the parts catalog and further information.
