

Plants, dedication highlight festival

The dedication of the John Inskeep Environmental Learning Center at 2 p.m. Saturday will highlight the Spring Arts and Ecology Festival Friday and Saturday, April 22 and 23. The festival is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Clackamas Community College's John Inskeep Environmental Learning Center.

Inskeep, a former state senator and Clackamas County extension agent, is a long-time conservationist and outdoorsman in Oregon. He was also instrumental in setting up Oregon's grass seed industry.

Guest speakers for the dedication include Vern Duncan, Oregon State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Claudia McDuffy, environmental education specialist. Helen Cannon, secretary of the Citizen's Association for Environmental Learning Centers, will speak of the biography of Inskeep.

"We've been told by McDuffy that it's the only facility in the state of its kind," said Jerry Hermann, project director for the environmental learning center.

A plant sale will be a large part of the weekend's activities. Trees, shrubs, bedding plants, hanging basket plants and indoor plants will be on sale to the public. All proceeds will go to the learning center project.

The Oregon Cactus Society will also take part in the event with a cactus exhibit and sale.

Entertainment will include CCC's "Schizoid Plus," directed by Roby Robinson of the drama department, International Ecology Flag raising ceremonies by a local eagle scout troupe and guitar music throughout the remainder of the festivities.

"The dedication marks a beginning of a new era for us," said Hermann.

Harris to appear

The beautiful Alabama-born singer-guitarist, Emmylou Harris, will be appearing at the Civic Auditorium, Thursday, April 28, at 8 p.m. with special guests, The Amazing Rhythm Aces. Tickets for this Double Tee event are $5.00, $6.00, $7.00 reserved seating.

The Amazing Rhythm Aces is a Memphis combo who mix rock, country, bluegrass and other music styles for a pleasing program. Sextet makes it vocally and instrumentally with an emphasis on top flight material from their two ABC albums "Stacked Deck" and "Too Stuffed to Jump". Among their well-received tunes are "Third Rate Romance", "Amazing Grace", "Dancing The Night Away", "If I Just Knew What to Say", and "The End Is Not In Sight".

Tickets are now on sale at Meier & Frank, Everybody's, Hardy's at Jantzen Beach, For What It's Worth, America in Vancouver, and the Civic Auditorium Box Office.

KGON sponsors design contest

Artistic flair and the incentive to win $1,000 in clothing from the Squire Shop are all it takes to create the official KGON T-Shirt design.

The design must include the call letters "KGON" and can be in any form and on any medium.

Persons entering the contest must take their art to Washington Square between April 25 and May 1. The winning art will be displayed on hundreds of T-shirts and carry the winner's signature.

For more information on the KGON T-Shirt Design Competition, contact KGON-FM 92.
