the type you could expect college students to buy -- Penthouse, Playboy, Cosmopolitan and National Lampoon.

Booths still available

There are still openings available for those interested in having a booth at the Spring Fair at Clackamas Community College on May 19 through 22.

The booths range from information to arts and crafts and applications may be obtained from the student activities office at 656-2631, ext. 340.

The Spring Fair will also feature musical performances, athletic events and competition, the spring drama production of "Come Blow Your Horn", and other activities.

Acting team performs

Schizoid Plus, Clackamas Community College's impromptu acting team, will perform tomorrow at noon for students and public in the Community Center Mall.

The eight-member company, supervised by Roby Robinson, CCC theatre department technical director, will perform a take-off of a speech class during a demonstration speech improvisation.

Schizoid Plus will continue their term's performances Friday, May 20, at noon in the CC Mall and conclude June 3 at the all school picnic.

"Super Van" not very super

By Vickie Josi
Staff Writer

The only thing that's 'super' about the movie "Super Van", is in the name.

The acting and plot was about as intensifying as the three stooges, and doesn't par up to the quality of amateur home movies.

The so called 'super' van was probably out of some unrealistic cosmic comic.

But there were some really "trick" custom painted vans, which were about the only worthwhile viewing of the entire movie.

"Super Van" is the old basic the-good-guy-always-wins-and-gets-the-girl-type comedy.

John to show works
