Chasing wildlife along the banks of the Willamette River, the class learns sometimes your subject refuses to cooperate.

Photographers explore Clackamette Park

The Winter Term Photojournalism class took a Sunday field trip to Clackamette Park - to explore its photographic possibilities.

Class members, under the direction of instructor David Falconer, tried out different ways to compose and expose photos, and learned how to pose subjects for the best effects.

The Photojournalism class is offered once a year, and will be held again Fall Term, 1989.
