Alcohol Awareness Week's message... Don't drink, drive

by Jennifer Soper
Staff Writer

Death was among the student body Monday as Alcohol Awareness Week began. He came dressed in black carrying tombstones as a reminder of the number of people who are killed by drunk drivers every year.

"The point is even if you don't drink and drive, you're not above being a victim," said Administrative Assistant David Nelson, who coordinated the week-long event.

Today's program includes a Victim's Impact Panel in the Fireside Lounge at noon. The panel was formed two years ago as a part of the Clackamas County DUII Taskforce.

"The panel is to present to students people whose lives have been dramatically and traumatically changed by drunk drivers. It is my sincere hope that people will learn by others' mistakes on this panel next year," commented Nelson.

"We're not against drinking, we're against drinking and driving," said Carol Monahan, a member of the panel. Her husband, Gary Monahan, was a CCC student who was killed by a drunk driver nearly four years ago.

Other events for the week include the showing of the movies The Deadliest Weapon in America and Alcohol Abuse Profile, a film featuring local people. Friday there will be a mock funeral in the Fireside Lounge.

"The single most important point is not if you drink, it's how you drink," said Nelson. "Nobody has the right to tell you to not drink, but nobody has the right to take somebody's life in their own hands by getting behind the wheel of a car and endangering other people's lives by drinking and driving."

"I'd just like to see people (become) more aware. I'd like them to think a little bit more about the impact (drinking) has on other people and how other people can impact their lives," concluded Nelson.

Portland Chamber rewards Shumaker

by Jim Titus
Editor-in-Chief

Terence Shumaker, a drafting technology instructor, and the Authorized AutoCAD Training Center at CCC both received awards from the Portland Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce September 22.

Shumaker has been an instructor at Clackamas since September of 1978 and teaches both drafting and computer drafting. He received a $500 check with the award.

The Authorized AutoCAD Training Center also received an award from the Portland Chamber. Clackamas was the first school in the state to become an Authorized AutoCAD Training Center. AutoCAD (CAD stands for Computer Aided Design) is a commercial software program that enables a computer to be used for drafting, rather than the traditional paper method.

"Our program is unique in that we were the first educational institution in the state to become an authorized AutoCAD training center. We have trained the highest number of people in the state on AutoCAD," Shumaker said. "Our program, with the offerings we have, is the only one of its kind in the state."

One of the reasons the CCC AutoCAD Center was selected for the award is its unique VoiceCAD program. VoiceCAD allows students who don't have full use of their arms to use AutoCAD with the use of a microphone. Students can use any command normally entered with the keyboard by simply speaking into the microphone.

The annual Portland Chamber Teacher/Program Recognition Awards were started this year to honor college level teachers and programs that have an impact on the Portland business community. State-wide nominations were solicited by the Chamber from both two and four year Oregon colleges in February.

Nine teachers and eight programs were nominated for the award. Two-year and four-year schools were judged separately.

The nominees were scrutinized by a panel of three judges and one alternate that were selected by the Chamber's education committee. The judges based their decisions on the unique contributions the teachers made to their programs, and on how specific programs met the needs of local business and the community.
