Construction of jogging trail begins

by Roseann Wentworth Copy Editor

A jogging trail circling the campus is currently in the first stage of construction at Clackamas Community College.

Dale McGriff, Associate Athletic Director, is an active committee participant for the planning and construction of the Jogging Trail. So involved, in fact, that he was asked to take sabbatical leave during Spring Term 1989 to plan and organize the campus trail.

"There is a tremendous need (for the trail) on campus," expressed McGriff. "The trail will benefit CCC in many ways. First we're responding to the request of the community and second, the trail enhances community connectiveness to the college...even if they are not enrolled. Instruction will also benefit from this trail."

This "tremendous need" for a jogging trail has actually been on the college's back burner for over a decade. In the mid-1970's the idea of a jogging trail was developed, planned and approved, but fell through in 1978 due to funding complications.

Those funding complications were closely regarded and possibly solved by having nearly all materials and labor donated or volunteered by community businesses, corporations and citizens.

The only funding Clackamas Community College is providing is a $3,000 grant for the project for the most difficult, mandatory construction areas where donated materials may not appear.

Construction is already visible east of Barlow Hall.

"The first shovel turn makes this project a commitment...it keeps the momentum and enthusiasm for the trail project high," stated a spirited McGriff. "There is such community and college support and interest. We also have environmental support and approval."

The trail is approximated at 2.4 miles in length and will consist of a three-inch gravel base for drainage, six-inches of hog's fuel and one inch of barkdust. Either a ditch or a small embankment will be constructed on both sides of the path for durability and low maintenance to the college.

The trail will also provide the walkers and runners who currently use the campus roadways a safe place to exercise and give drivers less to be liable for on campus as expressed by trail subcommittee members. Enabling the trail to the handicapped is also planned.

McGriff's goals and visions for the completion of the plan involves a "major road-run as a fundraiser and to acknowledge the people who provided services to the project...then turn it into an annual event."

The completion date is set loosely some time in late 1990, although a date is difficult to determine due to the construction is, concluded McGriff, "heavily relying on the rate of donations."

Senators selected

by Jennifer Soper Staff Writer

The newly selected ASG senators are already busy planning activities for the year. They have coordinated Alcohol Awareness Week, and brought the movie Bambi for Family Night fun.

"It was very hard selecting (senators) because we had a lot of good applicants. I think the senators chosen will do a great job," said ASG President Garrett Lytle.

"The effect they have will definitely be positive because they're all great people," Lytle continued.

Senators to Entertainment Coordinator Scot Cambron are Jason Gibson, Troy Kerr, Shamma Lacy, Mekeba Shaughnessy and Dean Walch.

Eric Douglas and Deni Gardner are senators to Administrative Assistant David Nelson.

Senators to ASG Vice President Tim Jones are Jim Olson and Heidi Stardig.

Each of the senators selected had their own diverse reasons for getting actively involved with student government.

"I've been involved with student government my whole life. I like to be in a position where I can do something about things instead of just talking about it," commented Olson.

"I felt since it was my third year, I understood the school system and I felt it was my duty to serve," said senator Walch.

"I'm involved with ASG to unite the student body and to make things happen," said Gibson. "I want to make an impact on the school while at the same time utilizing the organizational and management skills I'm learning at Clackamas."

Other senators have specific goals for the year which will play important parts in their personal involvement with ASG.

"I want to make everyone here feel like a part of CCC and to feel like they're accepted," said Gardner.

"The ASG should be known for its team work, not individual accomplishments," Lacy said.

Shaughnessy's goal is something no other senator voiced. "I want students to be proud to come to CCC - not to call it 'Harvard on the Hill' anymore."

"I think the opportunities for (the senators) to accomplish many things this year are there. It will be up to them to achieve whatever goals they want to achieve with student government. I know they can do it because I feel they are very competent," Lytle concluded.
