

English sport lands at CCC

By Rick Piller

Endurance and finesse are two words that describe the sport of Rugby. Originating in the town of Rugby in England it is similar to both soccer and football. Consisting of two forty minute halves with a two minute half time, and no substitutions, the game is fast paced and exciting. Fifteen players are needed to play the game.

The point of the game is to move the ball down the field by passing it back and forth amongst the players until you reach the try-zone and score for your team. This is easier said than done. While you are trying not to make any forward passes (these are illegal), the other team is trying to tackle you and take away the ball and also score. Scrums, rucks and mauls are all fundamental parts of the game. Scrums are one way to get a ball back into play after a penalty. Eight men from both teams form a tight block and then push, trying to get the ball out to their backs. Rucks occur after a man has been tackled and released the ball both teams try to recover the ball by pushing the other away from the ball. Mauls are similar to ruck except that the ball carrier did not fall down. The two teams then try to strip the ball away from the ball carrier and resume the charge for the goal.

The Clackamas Community College Rugby Club meets every Tuesday and Thursday between 3 and 5 p.m. at the football field.

Pete York, the club's coach, said, "Rugby has taken on a bad name. It is actually a gentleman's sport and not 'Smear the Queer'." The club has fourteen men and one woman on the roster.

More members are needed if the club is going to be able to compete with other schools and clubs like, the University of Portland and Oregon State University. Anne Schubel, the only woman in the club, commented "It is really fun; I love the game."

"It is not as rough as people think it is. It's a team sport, so it's not just one person who gets to score all the time."

People who are interested in joining the club just have to come to one of the practices ready to get dirty.

Harker, Moore selected as athletes of the month

by Mark A. Borrelli

Volleyballer Casie Harker and cross country runner Dusty Moore have been selected as The Clackamas Print athletes of the month for October.

During the month of October Harker was simply awesome. In a recent contest with Linn-Benton, Harker had 20 kills and 20 digs. For her outstanding play she was chosen as The Region 4 volleyball Player of the Week for the week of Oct. 10-18.

The Clackamas cross country team recently won another state championship; and a key to their success this season has been the performances of Dusty Moore. Moore finished fifth in the state meet for the Cougars, and has been a consistent strong finisher for the Cougars all season.

"Dusty has been very consistent for us this season. He's been really running strong, and that really helped us at the state meet," said Coach Mike Hodges.

Rally looks to change image

by Brenda Hodgen
Staff Writer

"For now, we need to decide on outfits for the team so we won't be cheering naked," said Rally Coach Shelly Burck.

The Rally Squad has been selected and recently began practice for the upcoming season.

"Right now they'll be concentrating on the cheer that they learned in tryouts and they have another cheer to learn before the season starts," Burck explained.

The squad consists of eight members: Lisa Weldon, Sheri Duclos, Teresa Ottolini, Cheryl Ellison, Brenda Hodgen, also two junior members: Karie Burck and Aimee Burch.

"We're not going to have the problems that we had last year," stressed Burck. "One member was involved in a fight, and others quit which caused several position changes that made the entire season hectic."

Burck is looking forward to working with the team to "change the image of rally."

"Society in the Northwest views rally in a totally different eye than in the South or the East. Even the cheerleaders don't seem to show the same commitment," Burck emphasized. "There just isn't the same attitude here as down South."

Burck is aiming to build a quality team that will open the crowd's eyes and gain more public interest in rally.

"There should have been about 60-75 people trying out for rally in a college this size, instead we only had five applicants," she said. "People just don't have the enthusiasm for rally here. I want to raise the standards and change rally's image. Tumbling is a major part of cheering, so I plan to add more of that type of talent to the team."

The season begins with the Red Devil Classic tournament in Longview, Washington Nov. 24-26. The first home game will be against Willamette University Nov. 29.
