

CCC cagers win Walla Walla tourney

The Clackamas Women's Basketball team is preparing for tonight's match-up against Green River, after taking two victories at the Walla Walla Tournament over the weekend.

"We're doing real well right now," expressed Coach Phil Garver. "Looking at Green River, though, they are one of our toughest challenges."

The tournament was off to a fine start Friday when CCC smoked Pierce College 79-55.

Angela Hewlett, and Pam Pember swept the game, each outscoring players from both sides. Hewlett racked up 9 shots and Pember brought in 8 of her own.

Kelli Brown, Alicia Stephenson, and J.J. Drennen were the night's other top shooters.

Angela and Pam really shined in the first half," stressed Garver, "and Kelly Brown played real well when Angela got in trouble."

Although there were top players, the game was a great team effort according to Garver.

"We came right out and took control with our full court press," he said.

The Cougars wrapped up the weekend with a 76-56 victory over Walla Walla.

Drennen lead Saturday night completing 8 in 13 with Stephenson right behind her capturing 7 of her 17. Hewlett, and Pember backed the leaders with a combined total of 12 shots.

"We broke out to a big 18 point lead, but at halftime we only lead 31-30," explained Garver. "Then we gained control in the second half, and took it to 'em."

The Cougars overpowered both teams in free throws, and remained consistent in both rebounds and assists.

According to Garver, the team had good weekend.

"I was really pleased," he said. "During both games we had good team effort from the sophomores, and we got some freshmen into the game during the two days."

Hewlett was the tournament's MVP and Pember received first team honors.

Morris claims third at Pacific Open

Fourteen members of the Cougar wrestling team competed in the Pacific Open at Pacific University this weekend with only one member making it to the winners' stand.

Craig Morris placed third in the 126 weight.

"I am really pleased with the way that Craig wrestled. He wrestled very well all day," stated Coach Jim Jackson.

Five other Cougar wrestlers tied for fifth place. There were no wrestle-offs to decide who took fifth or sixth place.

The wrestlers tying for fifth were Darren Misenbach at 118, Matt Lindland at 158, Steve Teeney at 167, Dave Grievie at 177, and Kelly Riechner at 190.

"It was a large tournament with most weight classes had 12 to 20 people in each class. Quite a few of the competitors came from four year schools," explained Jackson.

Among those four year schools were University of Oregon, Pacific University, Central Washington University, and Western Oregon State College. Junior colleges were also represented but the Clackamas wrestlers did not meet head to head with them.

"We just didn't do real well. It was our first actual test against the collegiate competition. I don't feel too bad though; because it gives us a idea of where we are and where we have to go.

"Maybe now it will reinforce the coaching staff's struggle in trying to get changes made in technique. Now that they have seen what happens, they may start changing," said Jackson.

At the end of finals week, the wrestlers will begin their wrestle-off, which will get a "ranking ladder" that the coaches will use at the beginning of the new year.

During Christmas vacation, the Cougars will still be active. On Dec. 9 a few of the members will compete in the Big Bend tournament in Washington. They will then gear up for the Glencoe Open on Dec. 30.

Winter intramural sign ups underway

Clackamas Community College intramural sports for the fall term has come to a close, but not without some exciting finishes in all the sports that were offered.

First, there was flag football. The four teams that made up the league were the Bushwhackers, The Concord Killers, The Raiders, and The Regulators. They battled for five weeks leading to the Super Flag Football Championship between the Regulators and the Raiders. A tough game came down to the final minute with the Regulators prevailing.

Then there was racquetball. Men and women from Clackamas Community College competed in a sort of round-robin tournaments in three divisions, they are: beginners, intermediate, and advanced. In the beginner's tournament, Brett Venerri took the tournament for men, and the women's winner was Steph Suskie. In the advanced, Jim Jackson and Chris Shaw were at the top of their division respectively. There are no intermediate racquetball tournament winners to report at this time.

In the running events that were held at Clackamas, Todd Applegate was the first male finisher in the 3.1 mile Turkey Trot with a time of 21.10. Barbara Allen-Clark was the overall winner for the women in the Turkey Trot with the time of 22.56.

In the prediction timings, Loren Ford came within a second of calling his time correctly. Ford predicted a time of 23.30, and ran the Turkey Trot in a time of 23.31. In the women's prediction race, Sherie Kindler ran the Turkey Trot a time of 24.10. Kindler missed her predicted time of 25 seconds.

Now that the fall term is almost over, there is still time to think about winter term intramural sports. The winter term will provide sports including 5-on-5 basketball, 3-on-3 volleyball, and another fun run later in the term.

"I would like to get as many teams in the tournaments as possible," commented Kathie Woods. "The more teams we have, the better the competition."

Winter rosters for the sports will be ready for the student body at the start of winter term, across from Kathie Woods office in the lower level of Randall Hall. The athletes of Clackamas will have the first three weeks to sign up for the competition they want to test their skills at. Make sure to get down and sign up before the deadline of the 23 of January.
