Clackamas Community College has scheduled programs to support National Drug Awareness Week, which began Monday and will end Friday.

Associated Student Government, Student Activities, and CCC's health department are sponsoring the week's events.

Programs and events scheduled are to include panels, the blood drive, a guest speaker, displays and facts, and information on drug and alcohol awareness according to Jason Gibson, ASG senator and coordinator of the event.

Monday there was a Cocaine Anonymous Panel in the community center. The panel discussed addictions and problems with cocaine. An Alcoholics Anonymous panel also took place Tuesday in the Community Center.

The American Red Cross Blood Drive will be held today in the Community Center. It is not too late to give blood, according to Ken Ingram, coordinator of the blood drive.

Thursday, Dennis Donin, Director of Development, from Comprehensive Option for Drug Abusers will speak on "Drugs in the Work Force."

Friday, there will be a display from the Clackamas Community Sheriff's Department in the Community Center.

There will also be a car parked in front of the Community Center all week. This car was involved in a drunk driving accident.

"The individuals in these organizations are donating their valuable time to help us," said Gibson.

"All we want to do is say, look - be aware of it, be responsible," said Gibson. "There is a time for business and a time to party, and to make it in life, you have to be able to distinguish between the two."

Harmony Center hires two employees

While students and faculty alike were enjoying the time off for Christmas Vacation, the Harmony Center, Clackamas Community College's satellite campus, was putting two new employees to work: Theresa Randall and Karen Yowell.

Randall is replacing Ruby Kunze, who is retiring after 17 years. "Ruby cannot be replaced, but I am here to fill her void," said Randall.

She started as Administrative Secretary in the Small Business Development Center during Christmas break week. The SBD is a program at Harmony that was started in 1984 for entrepreneurs. People wanting to open their own business can take courses and attend seminars to learn about opening and maintaining a business.

"We are a support for the small business person," explained Randall. "A 'passer-on' of information to connect people to the right resource. "The SBDC counsels people, helps them get in touch with the right parties to borrow money from, and provides support for the small business owner.

Yowell is back at Harmony in the SBDC after taking some time out to work in telecommunications at Washington Community College. She came back to Harmony last Spring part time and returned to permanent full time in December. "I am glad to be back," she stated. "It's a great place to work."

Her history at Clackamas Community College started in 1978 when she attended school here.

She graduated with a degree in Early Childhood Education. She then went to work as a full-time employee in the Community Education Department. From there she became a full-time employee at the SBDC for four years before she went to the job at WCC.

Currently, one aspect of her job involves a pilot program run by the SBDC. Two interns from the business program are employed at Harmony. They work four hours a week to develop the skills they are learning in Employment Management Development classes.

Volunteers needed for drive

ASG will sponsor their second blood drive of the year today, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Community Center. The event is sponsored by the American Red Cross.

ASG Assistant to the President Ken Ingram, who coordinated both of the drives, said that 85 units of blood were collected at the October 25 drive.

"Last time we had about 119 people show up, but a lot of them were turned down for reasons like they weren't feeling well," said Ingram.

Ingram said the need for blood in the Northwest area is great because "the blood that is donated comes from only five percent of the population. We have to support all the local hospitals too,"

Ingram added.

Ingram distributed flyers throughout the community, hoping to get more people to donate.

"At the last blood drive most of the donors were students and faculty of CCC. We had a lot of first-time donors," said Ingram.

Ingram emphasized that if only 10 percent of the students gave blood, "we would have an incredible blood drive."

CORRECTION:

In the last issue of the Clackamas Print a story on the tax levy had some incorrect information.

Clackamas Community College doesn't have a tax base at this time. It was reported that CCC does have a tax base.

Only .05 of every dollar goes to CCC from local taxes, not .55 as was reported last week.

The Clackamas Print regrets the errors.
