Student government prepared for year

The Associated Student Government (ASG) is geared up for the year to get underway and ready to involve the students in the many campus events planned and issues that may come up over the course of the year.

Elections were held in spring term 1990 for the President and Vice President. The executive cabinet members were also selected at that time.

Tony Franklin, ASG President, got involved in student government because he felt "there was too much apathy here." Franklin is pursuing a degree in business.

"I'm looking to get students involved in what's going on on the campus and help expand their educational experience," Franklin said.

Vice President Andreas Luehring felt that "the opportunity was calling to me to get involved." Luehring is a foreign student by choice not through an exchange program and is pursuing a Business degree so he can transfer to a university and study International Business.

"I'm happy to be vice president and I'm happy to be at Clackamas," Luehring said. "I am glad to have a view behind the scenes working with the faculty and for the students."

Assistant to the President Renae Austin is also pursuing a degree in business and sees ASG as a way of getting more out of her educational experience than just classroom experience.

"I got involved because I had complaints and I can't complain about what I don't like if I'm not involved in a part of the process," Austin said.

Becca Schroeder, Administrative Assistance, saw how last year's ASG worked together and wanted to be a part of that atmosphere and "team spirit."

"We are all interested in getting the students involved, but I want to also make sure that as a group we don't lose our team spirit," Schroeder said.

Entertainment Coordinator Scot Camberon wants "to make sure that people have a good time while at school."

"I want people to be friends and talk to each other," Camberon said.

ASG has suggestion boxes in every building and encourages anyone with a suggestion to use them. The members of ASG want everyone to know that, as a staff and as individuals, they are approachable and available for the students.

Applications for senator positions are available and are due by Oct. 4. The applications can be picked up at the Student Activities window in the Community Center.

"There are a lot of students at Clackamas and if we all get together, it can really make a difference," Franklin said.

Policies strictly enforced

That is, if the person needs to leave campus and cannot because they are blocked in, the blocking car will be towed. A citation is given to all cars that are towed.

"For the most part the warning system is working," Wiseman said.

"The warning system is an idea that has seen its time and place at Clackamas," Wiseman added. "That pleases us. We don't like to give citations on a regular basis, and we most certainly don't like to tow peoples cars at their expense."

All warnings and citations are computer indexed. After receiving a citation a person has 10 days to go to the appeals board to try to nullify the citation. After the 10 days there is no longer an opportunity to have the citation reversed.

If fines are not paid then the student will not be able to re-register for the next term, receive their graduation diploma or have their transcripts sent to any other colleges.

"There has been an acute parking shortage," Wiseman said. "Some areas are also compounded by on-going construction and the limitation of time and funds for parking lot maintenance."

Over the summer the parking was increased 12-15 percent by the expansion of the McLoughlin lot.

"There has to be a fairness when it comes to parking," Wiseman said. "We all should be able to go home and go to sleep and feel we've been fair."

"I think one of the cures for the parking situation is to have a mandatory instead of voluntary registration of vehicles," Wiseman said. "That way we know who belongs to what vehicle."

"Mandatory registration could be set up here, and we are looking into the options for starting it in the future," Wiseman said.

Environmental issues addressed Tuesdays

John Nance will speak on the primitive peoples of the Philippine rain forest, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday Oct. 9 in the Community Center Fireside Lounge.

Nance, renowned as a photo-journalist, author and teacher, will be dealing with the cultural and industrial growth of the forest dwellers since their discovery five years ago.

Nance has made 10 visits to Tasaday in the Philippines and was a consultant for NBC when they did an hour documentary on rain forest dwellers.

"The Second Tuesday Series" is being presented by the Cultural Affairs Committee and ASG. The topics of the series will cover environmental issues, and the second Tuesday of each month different speaker will be presented.

Campus shows signs of new building

Also planned are a new building to house the Library, a Family Resource Center, a Forum Building and the off-campus construction of a Wilsonville Center. The remodeling of McLoughlin and Barlow Hall will be the last of the projects, with an expected completion date of September 1992.

No new parking is planned for this remodel effort, beyond the 200 spaces already completed. However, future construction of a parking lot between the freeway and Douglas Loop is in the planning process. The planned parking would provide easy access to the new buildings.

Bruce Ferrell of Elliot-Jochimsen Construction Company, General Contractor on the computer technology building, says the construction is going according to schedule. "We run a little behind and then a little ahead, it all evens out," says Ferrell. Ferrell also believes that the sudden adverse weather conditions will not effect the progress on the building itself, but could delay construction of the sidewalks, as concrete cannot be poured when it is raining.

Elliot-Jochimsen Construction Company has been hired to build the parking lot that went in this past summer, the computer technology building and the corresponding sidewalks. The other construction has yet to be bid on.
