

Bowlers on a roll

The Clackamas Men's Bowling team used a 178 average per man over a 10-game set to keep control of first place after 13 games of the Oregon Intercollegiate Bowling Conference schedule.

The Cougar bowlers rolled to a 50-20 match-game record over the other schools in the conference to maintain a 6-game lead over Portland Community College in the match bowled at Beaver Bowl in Corvallis on Saturday.

Guy McElhaney and Roy Weedman spearheaded the charge with 196 and 198 averages, respectively, over the 10 games to keep the Cougars rolling.

McElhaney rolled four 200 games, and closed with a 653 series in the final three games to help the Cougars. Weedman had four games over 227, and a 651 series in the middle set, to keep CCC in the hunt.

Terry Roskey, Scott Hagen, and Frank Jordan each rolled one 200 game to help Clackamas out in the match. Darren Thrasher rolled two 200 games in the middle set to help out.

The Clackamas Print urges you to remember the men and women who are fighting for our country. They are our friends and neighbors. Please write and send your words of concern and encouragement.

It may seem a little odd . . . but the U.S. government is seeking the donation of panty hose! Troops in the Gulf can use them to cover weapons and machinery from the harmful effects of blowing sand. Sue Ladd, counseling office, is coordinating an effort on campus to collect panty hose; her ext. is 269.

Dribblers stuff SWOCC

The Clackamas Men's Basketball team continued their early season success in the NWAACC Southern Division with a road win against Southwestern Oregon Community College and a tough road loss to Umpqua Community College this past week.

This past Wednesday, the Cougar men ventured to Roseburg to play a very tough Umpqua squad that had defeated the Cougars earlier in the season, only this time CCC played real tough, losing in the end, 72-73.

"Our ball club played very, very well, they [Umpqua] just happened to be ahead when the final buzzer sounded," commented Coach Royce Kiser. "I really can't tell you how well we played, but they hit some real difficult shots in the end, and it just killed us."

David Daniels led the Cougar scoring parade with 27 points, followed by Glen Kiser with 24 points and 13 rebounds.

Saturday night, the Cougar road show continued in Coos Bay, where CCC turned a close ballgame into an easy win, 91-75, over SWOCC.

"We did a nice job against a tough zone defense, hitting some tough outside shots," said Coach

Kiser. "We did a nice job controlling the tempo in the second half, and things turned out the way we wanted."

Daniels again led the scoring with 27 points, and he also had six assists. Glen Kiser followed with 16 points, Neil Delplanche had 14, and David Hollingsworth also had 14. Kiser led the Cougar boardmen with 10 rebounds.

Against SWOCC, the Cougars shot 53 percent on 30-57 from the floor. They also went to the free-throw line 35 times, converting 26 charity tosses. The Cougars were again out-rebounded, this time by a 30-35 count.

Two road losses shock women hoopsters; two home games upcoming

The Cougar Women's Basketball team is back home tonight hosting Chemeketa Community College after two unexpected losses on the road.

"The next two games are at home so we should be able to end the losing and turn it around when we play Linn-Benton," explained

Coach Phil Garver. "Our shooting ability has really been bad, and playing on the road it will decrease, but not this much."

The team met up with Umpqua Community College Jan. 16 suffering a 29 point loss with a final score of 55-84. Only two Cougars, Stacey Wallace and Kathryn Muck each with 10 points, finished in double digit figures. Umpqua simply outshot the Cougars from all angles of the court, hitting 36 to our 22 from the floor and sinking 17 free-throws to Clackamas' 12.

Saturday, the team traveled to Coos Bay to meet Southwestern Oregon Community College where they took another defeat leaving the scoreboard as it read 59-79.

Garver tributes the team's struggle to a lack of intensity on the part of his players. He explained, "Our intensity level has just dropped. We had so many open lay-ups that never went in during both of those [Umpqua and SWOCC] games just because the girls weren't concentrating."

Garver continues, "We've really got to start focusing on playing team ball. We keep looking at three girls to get the job done and they aren't doing it."

To play, or not to play

First, may I express my extreme sorrow for the San Francisco 49ers after their heart-breaking loss to those East Coast bullies known as the Giants. No, folks, the threepeat will not occur this year, but the war has.

However, the games must go on. Although the entire world is in an uproar we must still live out our existence as Americans and what better way to do that than sitting down with a group of friends for Superbowl XXV Sunday afternoon?

Some say we should hold off on the event to show honor for our fighting men and women. Others suggest that the go-ahead of the Superbowl may be dangerous considering terrorism. To this I must state that first, I'm afraid our soldiers would be upset to know we cancelled this tradition while they are fighting for rights of the world. As one soldier stated "They shouldn't stop the game because of this war. That's exactly the type of thing we're fighting for."

Secondly, the troops are looking forward to the entertainment the game will provide. One soldier's mother with whom I work explained "Our troops need to have some entertainment after the things they see over there. They're looking forward and if the game is not played a great majority of the kids I have contact with will be greatly disappointed."

The war in the Middle East is not simply for war. It is to show that our mighty nation will not stand by and allow the invasion of one country by a monarchy. War may not be the answer, but it does stand for something.

Might I add that the troops, themselves, are not there by choice. Shall not we, in the homeland, do all we can to support and brighten the spirits of our family and friends who are fighting? Let's play ball!
