

Tournament proves to be success for wrestlers

by Frank Jordan
Staff Writer

About $1000 was raised by the Clackamas Community College wrestling team at the annual CCC Takedown Wrestling Tournament held Sat., Nov. 7 in the Randall Hall gym.

Approximately 250 junior high, high school and collegiate wrestlers from around the Northwest participated in the tournament. Some good action took place and a good time was had, by all, according to CCC Head Wrestling Coach Jim Jackson.

"This tournament helps a great deal in paying our way to the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) championships every year. The past four or five years this has meant a trip to Bismarck, ND for our wrestlers that qualify," commented Jackson. "As far as the Takedown Tourney is concerned, we (the team) wrestled very well; I'm very pleased with the progress that our guys have shown thus far in the season."

Some of the returning wrestlers that placed in the national tournament last year include Blake Tompkins, who was eighth; Travis Bonneau, who was a Region 18 champion, but did not place at nationals; and David Evans, who defeated all three wrestlers in his weight class last season.

Tommy Doman, who transferred from Ricks College in Rexburg, ID, finished third in the national tournament last year, and is having a strong preseason.

The Oregon Thunderbolt Wrestling Club, which features wrestlers from around the Portland metro area, will be in the Randall Gym tonight at 7 p.m. to take on the Cougar matmen. Many Thunderbolt wrestlers have either decided not to go on to college, or have already used up their college eligibility. "This club will present a very formidable challenge for us," said Jackson. "It will be nice to get some experience that we can use for the season by wrestling these guys."

The Cougar grapplers will take on Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, WA next Tuesday night, Nov. 24, also at 7 p.m.

Women's volleyball team ends season with win

by Daphne Hartt

With an overall record of 8-10, and a league record of 5-7, the Clackamas women's volleyball team ended their season with a 4 game match against Portland Community College.

On Nov. 11, the Lady Cougars hosted their last match of the season.

Since it was the final match, Head Coach Kathie Woods made the decision to go with a sophomore lineup, except for freshman Carla Nofziger. She wanted the sophomores to "enjoy their final match and have a chance to shine on the court."

Although it took some time for the Lady Cougars to adjust, they came through to win 15-12, 15-9, 10-15, 15-13. This last win put them at fifth in the league.

"We started off really strong this year, but some key players suffered injuries. It just stopped our momentum. We were unable to keep the drive going," commented Woods.

This Thurs. at 5:30 p.m., the women will be hosting the NWAACC championship in the Randall Hall gym.

Among the teams participating will be the Chemeketa Community College (Chem. CC) Chiefs, who hold an impressive 11-1 league record. Trailing right behind the Chiefs is Southwestern Oregon Community College (SWOCC) with a 9-3 league record, and Umpqua Community College (UCC), who recently knocked out Mt. Hood Community College (MHCC). UCC has an 8-5 league record.

Last Monday, Woods announced the 1st, 2nd and Honorable Mention NWAACC All-stars.

CCC sophomore setter Jennifer McKenzie was named to the 2nd All-Star Team. On Dec. 4, she will travel to Highline Community College to play in the All-star tourney.

Those receiving Honorable Mention included sophomores Daphne Hartt, Amy Hines and Jill Wilson. Also, freshman Jennifer Potter was honored for her volleyball ability.

With an assist average of 6.23/ game, and an overall 249 assist total, it is no surprise that McKenzie was selected as an All-star. She also led the team in serving with 12 aces and a 30 percent ace average.

McKenzie will be transferring to Portland State University (PSU) in the spring to compete as a PSU Viking. She will then play on the team in the fall of '93. Since she is interested in child psychology, she plans to become a school counselor.

Wilson, who led the team in hitting efficiency, plans to attend MHCC for their physical therapy assistant program. She had a total of 33 kills and a 21 percent efficiency, meaning she had few hitting errors.

Hartt, who led the team in blocking, averaged 1.28/ game, and had a 25 solo block total. She plans to attend University of Washington to study biology or psychology. In the fall, she might join the Huskies to play for Head Volleyball Coach Bill Neville.

Leading the team in defensive play was freshman Keri Gunderson. She had 214 digs this season, which amounted to 5.49/game. Gunderson, who is an all-around player, came from Sam Barlow High School.

Hines is planning to attend George Fox College in the fall. She plans to try out for the volleyball team, and has been offered a spot on the track team.

Sophomore Ilene Penas, who also participates in track, plans to attend Western Oregon State College.

Even though Woods and the rest of the team were disappointed in not making the playoffs, they are already looking forward to next year, and will continue fundraising events, such as volleyball clinics and candy sales throughout the year.

"I'm excited for next year. We will have a good, solid core of returners. Fortunately, we had some very talented freshmen," Woods commented.

On Dec. 9, the Lady Cougars will have their annual volleyball banquet. At that time, Woods and her assistant coach, Erin Elder, will announce the team's Most Valuable, Most Inspirational, and Most Improved players.
