

Inside

Get to know Catcher Katie Brewster on and off the softball field. Meet her on page 7.

Kids and parents learn about the plant life around them in the Leaf In the Hand workshop. Read more on page 5.

Sports Scores

Baseball
Clackamas beats Linn-Benton	4-3
Quick Stats:
Jason Farrimond 2-4, 2 2B
Alvin Ellis 2-4; WP - Landolt

This week: Softball
Clackamas vs. Lower Columbia	Saturday, 1 p.m.
Quick Stats:
Clackamas [8-2, 14-7]
Lower Columbia [5-3, 19-9]

THE CLACKAMAS PRINT

Wednesday, April 21, 1999

Clackamas Community College

Oregon City, Oregon

Volume XXXII, Issue 20

Spring Fair rocks with local bands

SALENA DE LA CRUZ
Staff Writer

The sun was shining, the breeze was warm, and sound pulsed through the college on April 14, luring students from their classes to enjoy a little rock, rhythm and blues. Clackamas was rocked by three local bands that electrified the atmosphere during the ASG-sponsored Spring Fair.

Gudgen took the center square from 1-2 p.m. They brought all the heavy rockers out. "Metallica" was the first word forming on the lips of listeners.

"Brings me back to high school days, Metallica was in," said Kevin Ennis of the band Ennis in Theory.

Gudgen couldn't have picked a better band to imitate. Metallica has been around for awhile and one could listen to them forever. Metallica has changed with the times and if Gudgen is smart they will keep their image in touch with Metallica to keep themselves moving toward the top. "Sad, but True," "One," and "Enter Sandman;" the sound we grew up with. Grow old with Gudgen, a band that has a lot of potential in the hard rock field.

The band formed six years ago. According to Gudgen lead singer Shawn Russell, they've changed members many times, but they like the sound they have now. Andy Davis was on drums and Tim Baer brought his intensity to backing bass. Gudgen strives for an image of adrenaline and total culture shock.

See Bands, page 3

Photos by Timothy A. Bell

Shawn Russell [above], lead singer of the band Gudgen, jams on his electric guitar with drummer Andy Davis during the music festival last Wednesday. Tim Baer [left], backs up his fellow band members on bass. The trio was the third and last band to play during the three hour event, and made a definite impression on the crowd.