

Continued from last week

A-Anyway, what about those Candies commercials...those are hilarious...
T-Oh, I love those commercials. The one with the dude pushing through the bathroom cabinet with all the condoms spilling out, trying to find his Candies cologne...

A- So he can spray it down his pants!! Oh yeah and Alyssa Milano, from Who's the Boss is waiting on the bed for him...she's all grown up now boys!!!
T- I'm telling you, when I was young, I thought, whoa, she is SO HOT.

A- She's a babe, and she's legal now! Maybe you got a chance with her...speaking of condoms, what about that Trojan condom ad with the lava lamp?

T- You mean the one with Bob Dole? No wait, that's Viagra.

A- No, the one where these two people are in a dorm room or something, and all you can see is a lava lamp, but all of a sudden you hear the Trojan guy come in and say "TROJAN MAN!!" Then he says, 'greetings, pleasure-whatever people, blah blah blah,' and then at the end of the commercial the stuff inside the lava lamp forms into a penis shape.

T- How would you know what one of those looked like?

A- Ok, ok, I learned about it in 5th grade, ya pervert...

T- Whatever, you're the one talking about condoms and the male anatomy...

A- Oh, shut up. Anyway, you know what commercials really piss me off...those damn toothpaste commercials.

T- They do? Why?

A- They don't use any %$#@ing toothpaste in them!!!

T- But they have nice teeth...

A- I know, but that bugs me! They'll be brushing away, brushing away, brushing away...with no toothpaste! If they advertised with toothpaste, the people would be foaming all over the place. It would be dripping off their chins! Wait, that would be kinda gross...I guess that's why they don't use toothpaste, but it is still stupid.

T- Speaking of gross, did you ever see the Thomason commercial where the little kid pees in the pool?

A- No.

T- Oh, you didn't see that? Ok this kid is at a public pool, and he looks around at all these porta-potties, and they are all in use...he's squirming around holding his package, and all of a sudden, he looks at the pool, walks toward it, and all these little kids stare up at him in fear. He gets in the pool and he lets out a sigh of relief and goes Ahhhhhhh...

A- I don't get what that has to do with Thomason.

T- I don't either, but it's weird, I only saw that commercial once in the original form, the next time I saw it, they didn't show him getting into the pool. I think the general public couldn't associate peeing in a pool with buying a car.

For those of you with a short attention span but a love of all things animated, Spike and Mike's 1999 Classic Festival of Animation is here!

When most people think animation, they think cartoons, Disney or Bugs Bunny, but this festival will blow that definition right out of the water. Ranging from simple, child-like drawings to detailed, three-dimensional, computer-aided cartoon art, these short films show the wide variety of animation being produced today.

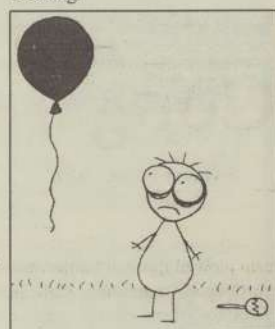

If you're bored with all the movies in mainstream theaters and want to find something out of the ordinary, this is definitely the event for you. This dazzling festival of art is being held at Cinema 21 in Portland for only two weeks starting Oct. 22.

VHX/CarrHot- Two words: Vegetable porn. Basically, a green veggie goes to an adult video store and buys a tape featuring CarrHot (carrot+hot; get it?). Definitely not one for the kiddies, but the funniest addition to the festival.

The Blue Shoe- This is the story of a blue high heel that is trying to find her "sole mate." On the surface, this feature is a simple child's story, but a closer look will reveal a wonderful message about finding love in today's busy world.

Billy's Balloon- Have you ever seen Revenge of the Nerds? Well, this one should be titled Revenge of the Balloons. Billy, a little boy, is holding a nice red balloon that suddenly starts beating the hell out of the poor boy. Every balloon in town starts to do it to its owner, and it is quite disturbing since the owners are all little children.

Bunny- This short about an elderly, computer-generated bunny won an Academy Award in 1998, and for good reason. The bunny is trying to keep out a moth who is getting in her way while she is baking, and the end result is heart-breaking.
