

ng around the indoor arena at Horsemaster Farms,
learn the fine art of English style Horseback riding

TIMOTHY A. BELL/ Clackamas Print

[above] Instructor Janet Adler runs the horse, Katrin, on a lunge line. She does this so that the horse loses some of its spirit, making it ridable.

TIMOTHY A. BELL/ Clackamas Print

[above] Mary Ann, student, prepares to place an English style saddle on a horse under the careful instruction of Janet Adler.

TIMOTHY A. BELL/ Clackamas Print

[left] Janet Adler puts a bridle on Katrin. Learning how to put a bridle and saddle on a horse is one of the first things that a beginning horseback riding student learns.

TIMOTHY A. BELL/ Clackamas Print

[right] Mary Ann takes Candy to his stall. Students learn to cool down a horse by walking it before putting it away.

TIMOTHY A. BELL/ Clackamas Print

out for a ride.