Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad, a three act comedy by Arthur Kopit and put on by the Clackamas Community College Communications and Theatre Department, will open tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Set at a lavish hotel in Port Royal, a city somewhere in the Caribbean, the play is a zany mix of sex, violence and intrigue.

Ellie Schwartz plays Madame Rosepettle who is an eccentric, over protective mother. Schwartz has had experience in commercials and has played in an episode of The Parkers. Originally from Idaho, Schwartz moved to Los Angeles to start her acting career. According to Schwartz, she came to Portland following a love interest and is happy she made the move.

"I haven't been in an education environment for a long time," said Schwartz. "It's nice to come back after being in professional work where everyone is learning."

The play also stars Jason Morrill playing Jonathan, Madame Rosepettle's son who has problems coping with his sheltered life; Sarah Rose as Rosalie, a promiscuous girl who's intent on removing Jonathan from his incarceration; and David Shanor as Commodore Roseabove, who may have lost his heart to Madame Rosepettle. Samantha Tennyson plays the head bellboy, with Christine Quinlan, Wendy Reese and
